Curriculum In Conflict:

Teaching Strategies for Children in Conflict H. Lee Swanson, Henry R. Reinert, 1984 Curriculum in Conflict Landon E. Beyer, Daniel Patrick Liston, 1996 The authors analyse the disparate views put forward in debates concerning both public school and university curricula multiculturalism the canon and the aims of education They also address the educational proposals and social political cultural and economic perspectives advanced by members of the new right modern liberals radicals and postmodernists The book ends with innovative perspectives on social and educational reform a progressive orientation that provides an agenda for significant change A curriculum on conflict management Uvaldo Hill Palomares, 1975 Conflict Resolution in the Middle School William J. Kreidler, 1996-04-01 Teaches students active listening perspective taking negotiation and mediation Through discussion role plays and journal writing students broaden their definition of conflict discover how conflicts escalate explore connections between diversity and conflict and learn how to de escalate conflicts The Conflict Resolution Curriculum for Children in Emotional Conflict Michael R. Self, 1982

Conflict Resolution in the Middle School William J. Kreidler, 1994 Grade level 6 7 8 e i s t Conflict Transformation Through School Jeremy Cunningham, 2015 Civil wars inflict terrible suffering and impede world development Conflict transformation is the process of changing the relationships attitudes interests discourses and underlying structures that encourage violent political conflict Despite relatively little empirical evidence the role of education is thought to be significant in building sustainable peace Getting children into school is vitally important but what do they learn once they get there This book explores the ways in which the school curriculum can contribute to or impede conflict transformation Using a framework based on truth seeking reconciliation and inclusive citizenship the role of the school curriculum is examined through a qualitative case study of curriculum in seven schools in northern Uganda as it emerges from a twenty year civil war Their heads teachers and students build a picture of schools that face great challenges but are making a distinctive contribution to sustainable peace The framework is used to investigate the school curriculum in three other countries that have suffered civil conflict Cambodia Rwanda and Northern Ireland As a curriculum model for reducing the risk of re eruption of civil wars it is essential reading for practitioners in the field of education in emergencies and for graduate students of development studies and of comparative education in universities around the world Conflict Resolution, 1987 Conflict Resolution in the Middle School William J. Kreidler, 1998 The Effectiveness of a Conflict Resolution Curriculum, Too Good for Violence, for Fourth Graders Cenovia Burnes, 2007 Does Curriculum Based Conflict Resolution Instruction/training Positively Affect the Behavior of Students in the Elementary School Environment? Brockton B. Ahrens, 2002 Unveiling the Hidden Curriculum in Conflict Resolution and Peace Education R. Michael Fisher, 2000 This report offers a brief summary of a master thesis that had the purpose to study the way conflict management educators write and think about conflict Using a critical discourse analysis a la Foucault of 22 conflict resolution manuals for adults and children U S Canadian Australian and using a selected sample of those most available to teachers and facilitators the author asks the question what is the best conflict education that is required for youth and adults to live in a world of a culture of violence in the 21st century The specific purpose of the study was to provide a poststructuralist critique of conflict management texts discourses re the conceptualizations of conflict itself The study found that the texts discourses were highly ideologically biased toward consensus theory unity and harmony cooperation pragmatism and a general conservative politics based in psychological individualism and social psychology Thus there is a hidden curriculum that ends up more like propaganda than good quality elicitive education according to the author of the report The author offers alternative discourses to balance the dominant discourses adding a conflict perspective critical pedagogy perspective and post colonial approaches to conflict that might be useful The author recommends some theoretical foundations and future research paths for building an alternative he calls critical conflict pedagogy and or critical conflict education Contains 1 figure and 30 end notes
