Overall Program Plan, National Customs Automation Program, 1995 HM Revenue & Customs' Transformation Programme Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2008 Eighteen months into an ambitious programme to transform HMRC the Department has spent 851 million and achieved estimated benefits of 2.4 billion These benefits are mainly from activities already underway when the programme began Changes to funding have led the Department to revise and postpone parts of the programme and the overall benefits expected carry high levels of uncertainty A report out today by the National Audit Office found that most of the 11.5 billion benefits are expected to come from an increased tax yield 6.3 billion and transaction savings to business and government 4.1 billion The estimate of additional tax yield is volatile and assumes collection in full The Department has made progress in developing its systems and processes and enhanced its project and financial management skills to deliver the programme For most programmes it has developed governance processes and set out responsibilities for managing the projects It delivered as planned one major programme in the first 18 months and has implemented parts of other programmes It is taking action to improve implementation plans and milestones risk management and contingency plans for some other programmes A major driver of the programme is the Department's targets to achieve efficiency savings of 5 per cent a year Changes in funding and content of the programme during 2007-08 delayed the completion of the business cases for individual programmes The Department has approved business cases for 10 programmes and plans to complete the remaining three over Summer 2008 Finalising the component parts of the transformation programme is a critical step particularly as the Department expects the funding available to peak in 2008-09 and reduce thereafter Changing the culture of the Department to become more customer focused is an important part of the programme In any change programme staff satisfaction might be expected to decline and recent surveys indicate morale remains at a low ebb The Department needs to more actively demonstrate the benefits to its staff and manage the expectations of customers as many of the improvements for them are scheduled for 2011 and beyond
