Abstract: A new concept for Personal Communication System that achieves the ultimate object of all communications systems, to enable anyone to communicate anywhere with anyone else anywhere is proposed. This concept offers a personal area or network with subscriber access systems for both wired and radio systems. Its three principal concepts are: (1) assigning a personal identity such as a Personal Telecommunication Number for an individual, and the network traces the person's routing; (2) serving a portable mobile unit for radio field access; and (3) serving advanced functions such as the network playing the role of secretary. System architecture and some problems are also presented.

1. Introduction

Recently the information-oriented society has developed, and the social and cultural structure has changed to a great extent. A great variety of people's behavior in the communication world, caused by advanced services that enable us to communicate conveniently with anyone anywhere in space and time is manifesting. In order to realize this type of user-oriented service, many kinds of systems are being studied or developed, such as mobile, automobile radio systems (MRS, IRS), and advanced cordless systems (MPT, MTS, Telepoint, DCSMT, MPTC, etc.).

In international standardization, CCITT standardized in 1981, in the preliminary stage discussing a mobile radio unit, such approaches as MRS, IRS and MPT, etc. In CCITT 86G, 86H, 86K, 1, and 86X, several subjects are discussed, for example, numbering, network functions, signaling, and so on (1)-(4).

There are many problems involved in offering economic personal communication services to every user in the mobile environment. Because work normally uses individual resources, they have applied the radio system in a wide area. The present work is a study on how efficiently such a system can be constructed in a limited number of subscribers and a radio area. Since most of the radio areas are small, the radio area should also be minimized to realize area-efficient portable terminals that are accompanied by large centers that are not mobile in position. Furthermore, in order to become a sufficient service of service areas, a large number of radio connections to be set, and the more subscribers there are, the shorter the delay in terms of the routing delay is. The number of service areas that can be set and the routing delay will increase with the number of subscribers in the area. As a result, the existing system configurations will cope very difficult problems in extending the service area.

For this reason we propose an advanced personal communication system in which each subscriber is located, registration and transfer, and routing are handled by public communication networks. Configuration and mobile service developments can be realized by using public communication networks facilities as transfer facilities. The proposed system enables each person to afford a portable telephone in areas of large concentrations and increase capacity.

2. Service Concept

- (1) Personal communication in mobile and portable by using Personal Telecommunication Number (PTN).
- (2) Transfer - Easily to connect with each wired and mobile terminals by using systems including very small computers, digital mobile terminals.
- (3) Mobility services according to user's choice and purpose.

Radio service design for service in MRS. The proposed system requires a mobile, relatively stationary telephone sets, but also mobile terminals. Services are available anywhere, such as home, office, or outdoors. The mobility should be less than or equal to that of mobile phone. A portable terminal is provided from the
