Advanced Transaction Models And Architectures:

Advanced Transaction Models and Architectures Sushil Jajodia, Larry Kerschberg, 2012-12-06 Motivation Modern enterprises rely on database management systems DBMS to collect store and manage corporate data which is considered a strategic corporate resource Recently with the proliferation of personal computers and departmental computing the trend has been towards the decentralization and distribution of the computing infrastructure with autonomy and responsibility for data now residing at the departmental and workgroup level of the organization Users want their data delivered to their desktops allowing them to incorporate data into their personal databases spreadsheets word processing documents and most importantly into their daily tasks and activities They want to be able to share their information while retaining control over its access and distribution There are also pressures from corporate leaders who wish to use information technology as a strategic resource in offering specialized value added services to customers Database technology is being used to manage the data associated with corporate processes and activities Increasingly the data being managed are not simply formatted tables in relational databases but all types of objects including unstructured text images audio and video Thus the database management providers are being asked to extend the capabilities of DBMS to include object relational models as well as full object oriented database management systems
