Benjamin Britten Death In Venice:

Benjamin Britten: Death in Venice Donald Mitchell, 1967 Benjamin Britten Death in Venice! Daniel John Owen Evans, 1983 Benjamin Britten, "Death in Venice" David Fuller, 2011 Death in Venice South Australia. Department of Education, 1980 Hearing the Unvoiceable Shersten Regina Johnson, 2004 Essays on Benjamin Britten from a Centenary Symposium Quinn Patrick Ankrum, David Forrest, Stacey Jocoy, 2017-06-20

Coming to terms with Britten's music is no easy task. The complex often contradictory language associated with Britten's style likely stems from his double interest in progressive composition and immediate connection with a broad popular audience, an apparent paradox in the splintered musical culture of the 20th century as well as from complicated truths in his own life such as his love for a country that accepted neither his sexuality nor his politics. As a result, the attempt to describe his music can tell us as much about our own biases and the inadequacies of our analytic tools as it does about the music itself. Such audits of our scholarly language and strategies are vital in light of the still murky view we have of twentieth century music. This opportunity for academic self-reflection is the reason Britten studies such as this book are so important. The essays included here challenge assumptions about musical constructs, relationships between text and music, and the influences of age, spirituality, and personal relationships on compositional technique. Part One offers nine essays originally compiled for a symposium designed to recognize the composer's unique and varied contributions to music. The authors include performers, musicologists, and music theorists, and their work will appeal to a wide diversity of readers. The topics and methodologies range from archival research and analysis of text and music to theoretical modelling using techniques such as set theory, metric theory, and prolongation. While the papers were initially conceived in isolation from one another, the collaborative focus of the symposium created opportunities for authors to expose points of intersection. This deliberate reconciliation of lines of inquiry has yielded a more balanced and unified collection of essays than typically found in a simple record of proceedings. Furthermore, the chapters presented here benefit from the wealth of Britten research produced since the 2013 centenary. Part Two provides an account of the symposium performances and lecture recitals that accompanied and enriched the academic presentations. The reader will encounter fully the journey taken by symposium presenters, participants, and attendees by reviewing the concerts, lecture recitals, and papers in the context of the full symposium program.

Analyses of Nineteenth- and Twentieth-Century Music, 1940-2000 D. J. Hoek, 2007-02-15. The latest volume in the Music Library Association's Index and Bibliography series, Analyses of Nineteenth and Twentieth Century Music 1940-2000 features over 9,000 references to analyses of works by more than 1,000 composers of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. References that address form, harmony, melody, rhythm, and other structural elements of musical compositions have been compiled into this valuable resource. This update of Arthur Wenk's well-known bibliography, last published in 1987, includes all the original entries from that work along with additional references to analyses through 2000. International in scope, the bibliography covers writings in English, French, German,

Italian and other European languages and draws from 167 periodicals as well as important theses dissertations books and Festschriften References are arranged alphabetically by composer and include subheadings for specific works and genres This bibliography provides students scholars performers and librarians with broad coverage detailed indexing and ready access to a large and diverse body of analytical literature on nineteenth and twentieth century music

"Death in Venice" and Beyond ,2012 Four Last Songs Linda Hutcheon,Michael Hutcheon,2016-11-04 Later life is a fraught topic in our commercialized anti aging death denying culture Where does creativity fit in The canonical composers whose stories are told in this book Giuseppe Verdi 1813 1901 Richard Strauss 1864 1949 Olivier Messiaen 1908 1992 and Benjamin Britten 1913 1976 offer radically individual responses to that question In their late years each of these national icons wrote an opera around which coalesced major issues about their own creativity and aging ranging from declining health to the critical expectations that accompany success and long artistic careers They also had to deal with the social political and aesthetic changes of their time including World Wars and the rise of musical modernism By investigating their attitudes to their creativity in the face of aging together with their late compositions and the critical reception of them this book tells the stories of their different but creative ways of dealing with those changes Bringing their respective specialties of medicine and literary criticism to bear on the study the authors show how the late nineteenth century where these stories begin saw the discovery and definition of old age as a social economic and medical construct And thus were born in the twentieth century both geriatrics and gerontology as disciplines Despite recent medical advances and increased life expectancy the strikingly dichotomous cultural views of age and aging both positive and negative have not changed much at all What also has not changed are the reception of late life works as caught between decline and apotheosis and the fraught discourse of late style The stories in this book weave all these elements together highlighting both the shared vicissitudes of aging and the individual power of creativity as a way to meet them
