Die Sterbende Jagd The Dying Hunt:

War and German Memory K. Michael Prince, 2009-01-01 Germans often claim that we have learned the lessons of our history. But what precisely are the lessons they have drawn from their Nazi era past? What experiences from that time continue to hold significant meaning for Germans today and how have those experiences shaped postwar German cultural identity? Though Germans have come to recognize the evils of Nazism for them, its primary evil derived from the war it unleashed and the hardships, death and destruction that the war wrought on the Germans themselves and less from the losses and suffering it caused others. Recent public discussion about the Allied bombing campaign against Germany, the expulsion of Germans from Eastern Europe and other German experiences during and following the Second World War have revealed what some see as an emerging tendency among Germans to perceive themselves as much the victims of wartime acts as other peoples. Through a survey of postwar literature, film and other popular media as well as public commemorations and other means of memorializing and discussing the past, K. Michael Prince demonstrates that the theme of German suffering has been an abiding and even overriding element of postwar German historical memory and a chief component of German cultural identity. While academics have focused their attention on Nazism, atrocity and genocide and while Germany's official ceremonies and other acts of public memory have been similarly directed, it was the wartime sufferings of average Germans that have remained at the core of German historical consciousness, influencing their attitudes toward war in general and shaping Germany's role in world affairs.

My way through life Jürgen Gehring, 2024-06-05 The author grew up as a child of war in a little town in Vogtland, the southern part of Saxony. His father, a Luftwaffe officer, was killed in an air battle against American bombers and fighter planes. He experienced the retreat of the defeated German Army and the occupation by American and Soviet troops, the transformation of the East German Soviet zone to a socialist country with a communist school system. He was a member of the communist youth organization but later joined the Christian youth community. He witnessed the uprising of East German people in June 1953, fled to West Germany with his mother to a completely foreign world with a western school system. After graduation from college, he studied medicine in Munich, Vienna and passed the Medical State Examination in Heidelberg. After passing the ECFMG, he got married to Franziska and started an internship and residency in New Jersey and Philadelphia, PA for two and a half years. After returning to Munich, he continued his medical education as an intern and resident in internal medicine and cardiology.

The Representation of War in German Literature Elisabeth Krimmer, 2010-06-10 The history of literature about war is marked by a fundamental paradox: although war forms the subject of countless novels, dramas, poems, and films, it is often conceived as indescribable. Even as many writers strive towards an ideal of authenticity, they maintain that no representation can do justice to the terror and violence of war. Readings of Schiller, Kleist, J. G. Goethe, Remarque, Grass, Böll, Handke, and Jelinek reveal that stylistic and aesthetic features, gender discourses, and concepts of agency and victimization can all undermine a text's martial stance or its ostensible pacifist agenda.
