Diesel Pioneers:

From Steam to Diesel Albert J. Churella, 1998-08-03 This overview of the leading locomotive producers in the United States during the twentieth century shows how they responded to a radical technological change the replacement of steam locomotives by diesels The locomotive industry provides a valuable case study of business practices and dramatic shifts in innovation patterns since two companies General Motors and General Electric that had no traditional ties to locomotive production demolished established steam locomotive manufacturers Albert Churella uses many previously untapped sources to illustrate how producers responded to technological change particularly between the 1920s and the 1960s Companies discussed include the American Locomotive Company ALCo the Baldwin Locomotive Works the Lima Locomotive Works Fairbanks Morse the Electro Motive Division of General Motors and General Electric A comparative work of business history and the history of technology the book is not a complete history of any locomotive builder nor does it explore the origins of the diesel engine in great detail What it does and does superbly is to demonstrate how managers addressed radical shifts in technology and production methods Churella reveals that managerial culture and corporate organizational routines more than technological competency per se allowed some companies to succeed yet constrained the actions of others He details the shift from small batch custom manufacturing techniques in the steam locomotive industry to mass production methods in the diesel locomotive industry He also explains that chance events and fortuitous technological linkages helped to shape competitive patterns in the locomotive industry

Railways Pilot Scheme orders of 1955 included ten English Electric Type 2 diesel electric locomotives deploying Napier Deltic engines These locomotives more colloquially known as the Baby Deltics were introduced into traffic during 1959 for use on the Eastern Region of British Railways This book looks at the history of the Class 23s making extensive use of available but previously unpublished archive material covering their introduction technical idiosyncrasies appearance design and performance Issues with the original Deltic engines were ultimately dealt with via a major rehabilitation exercise during the 1963 65 period whilst various re engineering options were considered including a new U series English Electric high speed engine design the original Napier engines were ultimately retained The work involved in the whole rehabilitation process is discussed in detail using internal English Electric archive material and forms a central focus of research The fleet survived intact until 1968 when withdrawal commenced as a direct result of declining traffic levels across the UK with successive National Traction Plans progressively selecting the less successful non standard and numerically challenged classes for removal from traffic All ten locomotives were withdrawn by March 1971 Individual locomotive histories allocations fire and Sayer,2020-06-30 This book provides an in depth history of the Metropolitan Vickers diesel electric Type 2 locomotives more frequently known collectively as the Co Bo s due to their unusual wheel arrangement Twenty locomotives were constructed during the late 1950s for use on the London Midland Region of British Railways The fleet was fraught with difficulties from the start most notably due to problems with their Crossley engines this necessitating the need for extensive rehabilitation work during the early 1960s Matters barely improved and the option to completely re engine the locomotives with English Electric units was debated at length but a downturn in traffic levels ultimately resulted in their demise by the end of 1968 prior to any further major rebuilding work being carried out Significant quantities of new archive and personal sighting information supported by over 180 photographs and diagrams have been brought together to allow dramatic new insights into this enigmatic class of locomotives including the whole debate surrounding potential re engineering their works histories
