The Ethics of Mobilities Tore Sager, 2016-03-23 With this book the international academic discourse on mobility is taken a step further through the intertwined perspectives of different social sciences engineering and the humanities The Ethics of Mobilities departs from the recent interest in social surveillance raised by the use of technology for the surveillance and control of mobility as well as for transport It widens this theme to encompass a broad scale of issues ranging from freedom and escape to social exclusion and control thus raising important questions of ethics identity and religion questions that are dealt with by a diverse yet structured range of chapters arranged around the themes of ethics and religion and freedom and control Through their variety and diversity of perspectives the chapters of this book offer a substantial interdisciplinary contribution to the socially and environmentally relevant discussion about what a technically and economically accelerating mobility does to life and how it might be transformed to sustain a more life enhancing future Ethics of Mobilities will excite not only international interest but will also appeal to scholars across a wide range of disciplines in fields as diverse as theology and engineering

The Architecture of Theology A. N. Williams, 2011-08-11 The Architecture of Theology presents a fresh reading of Christian theology reinterpreting discussions of theological method and considering them in light of contemporary philosophical debates A N Williams re evaluates the traditional theological warrants scripture tradition and reason and the concept of systematic theology arguing that Christian theology is inherently systematic reflecting the rationality and relationality of its two chief subjects God and other things as they are related to God Aquinas The roles of the theological warrants are assessed showing how they are necessarily interdependent Contemporary philosophical discussions of the structure of reasoning are also examined these have conventionally contrasted foundationalist and coherentist accounts A contemporary consensus has emerged however of a chastened foundationalism or hybrid foundationalism coherentism in light of which arguments are understood both as reasoning from foundational propositions and as gaining plausibility from the coherence of claims with one another The Christian tradition anticipated these developments theological arguments exhibit a dual structure with propositions underwritten to some extent by their dependence on scripture and tradition and to some extent by their coherence with one another in integrated webs or systems Christian theology is therefore shown to be systematic in its fundamental structure whether or not a given argument forms part of a systematic theology The systematicity of Christian theology is related to its subject matter God and other things as they are related to God Theology's two chief subjects God and humanity are characterised by rationality and relationality These are also the qualities of Christian theology itself it is a double mimesis reflecting in its very structures of reasoning its subject matter The order harmony and coherence of those structures however have an aesthetic appeal which has the potential to appeal for its very beauty rather than its truth Williams presents a careful examination of the tradition of theological aesthetics asking whether the beauty of systematic structures counts for or against theological truth
