Hans Schulte, Gerhart Teuscher,1993-07-02 The literary translator has long been a figure who has suffered from a lack of respect and recognition for his invaluable contributions to his particular culture Indeed as Hans Schulte notes in the introduction the debt owed him is great for without him his community would be doomed to provincialism a state in which no society can survive in the modern world All too often the translator is perceived merely as a literary mechanic between artist and audience rather than as an artist himself In this volume the translator his art and his role in society are addressed from a variety of angles in the collected essays As a whole the work paints a new portrait of the literary translator which brings out the finest points of his art and highlights the enormous value of his contributions Co published with McMaster University

Reading Marx Writing Thomas M. Kemple,1995 Employing the insights of recent cultural critics Reading Marx Writing uses the eight notebooks the Grundrisse Marx worked on in 1857 58 to examine his literary political and scientific imagination and the fictional writers he admired By exploring the Grundrisse the project or plan that Marx did not carry through the author speculates on the limits and possibilities of Marx's interpretive approach for addressing current issues in philosophy and hermeneutics critical sociology and political economy and aesthetics and literary criticism The study employs certain literary works notably a scene from Goethe's Faust and several stories from Balzac's Comedie humaine as looking glasses or sounding boards for Marx's political and scientific concerns and to connect themes emerging from the cultural economy of the nineteenth century These literary works are treated less as dramatic illustrations of Marx's life or depictions of his scientific insights than as interpretive frameworks or social fictions which give shape to both Marx's text and the writings of others working in his wake Through an innovative blend of German critical theory Lukacs Marcuse and Habermas French post structuralism Althusser Lyotard and Baudrillard and Anglo American cultural criticism Jameson Mitchell and O Neill the author develops a unique method for articulating the play of image text and even music within Marx's human scientific discourse
