1984 turned out to be considerably better than had been expected at the beginning of the year Output grew robustly in the industrial countries especially in the United States and Japan inflation continued to decline and developing countries saw a noteworthy improvement both in their balance of payments position and in their domestic growth performance Fears that the Commodity Recession Thomas Morrison,2006 The large and broad based decline in non oil primary commodity prices during 1984 86 is shown to be fundamentally different from the declines in the four previous cycles since 1970 which had been caused largely by weak demand Rising supplies of food and the lagged effects of increased production capacity of industrial raw materials were major factors depressing primary commodity markets in the 1980s and particularly in 1984 86 The econometric results also suggest that economic growth in the industrial countries must on average be over 3 3 percent
