Brazilian Journal P. K. Page, 2014-05-14 How could I have imagined so surrealist and seductive a world One does not like the heat yet its constancy its all surroundingness is as fascinating as the smell of musk Every moment is slow as if under warm greenish water In 1957 Page moved to Brazil with her husband the Canadian ambassador The hot lush landscape was utterly immersive and for the next three years Page recorded her life in an intimate vibrant startlingly funny journal Between her at times theatric responsibilities as the wife of an ambassador and her futile attempts to organize the ambassador s palatial home and staff Page found the time to write in exquisite prose of her responses to the wildlife the people and the colours of Brazil in the end illuminating more of her own emotional and artistic journey than of the country itself Accompanied by several of the illustrations Page created while on her travels this is a fascinating beautiful account of life in a magically unfamiliar place Brazilian Journal is the second addition to a series of volumes to be published over the next ten years as a complement to an online hypermedia edition of the Collected Works of P K Page The online edition is intended for scholarly research while this new edition offers a beautiful text to be enjoyed by those who love and wonder at the talent of one of Canada s greatest poets
