Brain Voices:

The Oxford Handbook of Voice Perception Sascha Frühholz, Pascal Belin, 2019 Speech perception has been the focus of innumerable studies over the past decades. While our abilities to recognize individuals by their voice state play a central role in our everyday social interactions, limited scientific attention has been devoted to the perceptual and cerebral mechanisms underlying nonverbal information processing in voices. The Oxford Handbook of Voice Perception takes a comprehensive look at this emerging field and presents a selection of current research in voice perception. The forty chapters summarise the most exciting research from across several disciplines covering acoustical, clinical, evolutionary, cognitive, and computational perspectives. In particular, this handbook offers an invaluable window into the development and evolution of the vocal brain and considers in detail the voice processing abilities of non-human animals or human infants. By providing a full and unique perspective on the recent developments in this burgeoning area of study, this text is an important and interdisciplinary resource for students, researchers, and scientific journalists interested in voice perception.

Voices in the Brain Sean Spence, Anthony S. David, 2004 For millennia, human beings have reported hearing voices. These experiences have been a source of fascination, sometimes because they spoke of revelation, sometimes because they presaged madness and destruction. From Socrates to the Yorkshire Ripper, the impact of voices upon human society has been considerable. But after all this time, what can we really say about their causes, their meaning, and their treatment? In this special issue of Cognitive Neuropsychiatry, Spence and David have edited a contemporary synthesis of what is known about voices, auditory verbal hallucinations (AVH). Contributions are drawn from an internationally renowned panel of authors, most of whom contributed to a symposium held in Sheffield, England, in September 2002. Voices in the Brain: the cognitive neuropsychiatry of auditory verbal hallucinations. Topics included in this special issue are a contemporary voice hearer's perspective on voices and their treatment; Cockshutt, a phenomenological hermeneutic interpretation of the content of voice speech; Bracken Leudar, a review of the evidence for cognitive interventions used to treat AVH in a group setting; Wykes, a structured literature review of evidence for and against 3 cognitive models of AVH; Seal Aleman, a review of the functional neuroimaging literature on AVH and proposed directions for future discovery; Woodruff, the use of virtual acoustics to model hallucinations in healthy subjects in the brain scanner; Hunter, a critique of contrasting cognitive models of the AVH phenomenon; David, an evolutionary account of schizophrenic voices and the place of language in human speciation; Crow, and the phenomenology of a saint who was burned at the stake.
