Decentralization And Development Partnership Lessons From Uganda:

Decentralization and Development Partnership Fumihiko Saito,2012-12-06 Decentralization an essential pillar of institutional reform is of critical importance in developing countries particularly in regard to democratization effective development and good governance Uganda since 1986 and the start of decentralization measures under Yoweri Museveni and the National Resistance Movement has represented one of the most serious commitments in Sub Saharan Africa With the benefit of extensive fieldwork Fumihiko Saito demonstrates how conflict resolution information dissemination and encouragement of the many and varied stakeholders to form partnerships are critical to successfully bringing services closer to the people Decentralization and Development Partnerships Lessons from Uganda goes beyond theory to compare academic assumptions to the reality of decentralization implementation in modern Uganda Although the process is by no means free of difficulties Saito concludes that a win win outcome is a real possibility Constitutional Law, Democracy and Development Douglas Karekoma Singiza,2020-09-30 Uganda like many African countries in the 1990s adopted decentralisation as a state reform measure after many years of civil strife and political conflicts by transferring powers and functions to district councils The decision to transfer powers and functions to district councils was in the main linked to the quest for democracy and development within the broader context of the nation state This book s broader aim is to examine whether the legal and policy framework of decentralisation produces a system of governance that better serves the greater objectives of local democracy local development and accommodation of ethnicity Specifically the book pursues one main aim to examine whether indeed the existing legal framework ensures the smooth devolution process that is needed for decentralised governance to succeed In so doing the book seeks overall to offer lessons that are critically important not only for Uganda but any other developing nation that has adopted decentralisation as a state restructuring strategy The book uses a desk top research method by reviewing Uganda s decentralisation legal and policy frameworks Decentralization and Local Development in Uganda ,2014 Decentralization and Development John Okidi,Madina Guloba,2006

Decentralization and Participatory Development Planning at District Level H. Nassamula,2001 Decentralization in Uganda G M S (Gina). Lambright,2004 Decentralization and Its Impact on Economic Development in Uganda Gerald Kintu Joseph,2012-05 The study examined decentralization and its impact on local economic development in Nakasongola town council The major objective of the study was to assess The impact of decentralization on local economic development in Uganda Decentralization theories include public choice theory Neo classical theory democratic and Marxist theory Data sources that the researcher used include primary and secondary Below are the primary sources that the researcher used Questionnaires oral interviews observation and secondary sources included documented materials such as work plan and budgets annual reports text books and also news papers Findings are presented in tables and written forms emerging from questionnaires distributed and other information the researcher established during the study From the findings it was discovered that the system of Decentralization has promoted local economic development to a lesser extent because of inadequate sources of funding poor prioritization lack of transparency and poor administrative skills in making development plans and budgets

Donor-dependent Decentralization and the Political Economy of Aid in Uganda Richard Ssewakiryanga, 2004 Decentralisation and Community-based Planning International Institute for Environment and Development, 2004 Decentralization in Uganda, 2009 Decentralization and Popular Participation in Development Planning at the District Level Opolot martin l'oenen, Democratic Decentralisation in Uganda Søren Villadsen, Francis Lubanga, 1996 Decentralisation and Transformation of Governance in Uganda Nakanyike Musisi, 2007 Uganda's decentralization policy is one of the most ambitious and radical in sub-Saharan Africa. A long tradition of local government already existed in Uganda in 1986 when the National Resistance Movement came to power so when the Presidential Policy Statement on decentralization was issued in 1992 it only formalized and articulated the Ugandan government's commitment to the decentralized system of governance. This commitment was subsequently strengthened and maintained through the provisions of the 1995 Uganda Constitution. Decentralisation led to the devolution of broad powers of administration and implementation to the districts leaving the centre with responsibility for matters of defence and law and order. This book examines the decentralization project after it has been in place for a number of years and deals with relevant crucial issues. Delius Asimwe is a Senior Research Fellow at the Makerere Institute of Social Research Uganda. Nakanyike B Musisi is the Executive Director of the Makerere Institute of Social Research Uganda.

Decentralization in Uganda Uganda. Decentralization Secretariat, 1993 Decentralization, Local Bureaucracies and Service Delivery in Uganda Moses L. Golola, 2001 Decentralisation in Uganda Remigius Munyonyo, 1999 Decentralization in Uganda Gina M. S. Lambright, 2011 Why do some African local governments perform well while others fail to deliver even the most basic services to their constituents? Gina Lambright finds answers to this question in her investigation of the factors that contribute to good and those that result in ineffective institutional performance at the district level in Uganda. Examining the conditions under which local populations are able to shape the performance of their local governments she adeptly combines quantitative analysis across 56 Ugandan district governments with in depth case studies of Lira Mpigi and Bushenyi.

Uganda Ehtisham Ahmad, 2006 A politically driven and ambitious decentralization program implemented by the authorities since the late 1990s has had mixed results in terms of enhancing service delivery. Paradoxically concerns with the results of service delivery partially driven by donors requirements have resulted in a deconcentrated system relying on conditional grants and unfunded mandates. This has reduced the incentives responsibility and ownership for local authorities to improve service delivery. Crucially for functions where the local authorities have had full responsibility better service quality has resulted than in those areas in which there are overlapping responsibilities between the center and the local authorities.
