Duffy, 2012-12-06 Over the past decade with greater emphasis being placed upon shorter lead times better quality products reduced product costs and greater customer satisfaction the topic of Engineering Design has received increased interest from the industrial and academic communities Considerable effort has been directed at developing design process methodologies and building computer tools that focus upon relatively narrow aspects of design but many key problems in Engineering Design research and practice remain unanswered Resulting from the First International Engineering Design Debate held in Glasgow UK in late 1996 this volume discusses the main issues concerning the improvement of design productivity Covering design studies design development concurrent engineering and design knowledge and information it attempts to derive a common understanding of the basic factors problems and potential solutions involved Mapping the Academic Debate Johannes Duschka, Christoph Kleine, Monika Wohlrab-Sahr, Florian Zemmin, 2024-12-16 This volume maps the international academic debate on secularity It places seminal contributions from within Western academia alongside less well known texts from various parts of the world in several cases this is the first time that they have been translated into English The volume demonstrates that the academic debate on secularity was and is a global debate with contributions from many regions The collected texts relate to each other either directly or indirectly by referring to similar arguments whether reinforcing or criticising them and thus create a discourse When speaking of global secularity we therefore do not insinuate a uniform world secularity resulting from the alleged global diffusion of Western norms ideas and concepts It is rather a web of relations that is constituted via various different references These references are not evenly distributed the development in the West is often the point of reference to which positions from other regions relate to which they connect or from which they distance themselves But the references are not completely unidirectional We also present texts from Europe that underline the multidirectionality of the process even early on Thereby the volume offers the reader the material with which to trace these global exchanges and references

Ivory Basement Leadership Joan Eveline, 2004 Many people fear that the ivory tower is crumbling Of urgent concern are deteriorating standards fewer jobs waning professional prestige and new layers of inequity Leadership in the tower is easy to spot It is hierarchical detached and mostly male In this highly readable book Joan Eveline turns her acute gaze to the ivory basement where the corridors departments laboratories and offices are peopled There she observes a greedy organization cannibalizing the efforts energy and care of the basement's workers most of whom are women Voices from the basement of the University of Western Australia but it could be any university speak about the devaluing of their work Eveline detects a new linkage through shared experience of administrative staff research assistants and the lower order of academics who increasingly are casual workers And she discerns a courageous and almost invisible exercise of leadership This post heroic leadership values personal relationship loyalty and diversity It is creative flexible and above all collaborative This book will hearten those dismayed by the restructuring pandemic For ivory basement workers have in adversity forged a leadership model that might well be mobilized to revive Australia's ailing universities

Studies in Educational Ethnography ,2007 What counts as ethnography and what counts as good ethnographic methodology are both highly contested This volume brings together chapters presenting a diversity of views on some of the current debates and developments in the field It does not try to present a single coherent view but through its heterogeneity illustrates the strength and impact of debate The topics discussed include participant observation research roles in fieldwork access to places and people in research ethical issues concerning anonymity and intimacy in research generalization in ethnography the use of video developing stronger criteria for autoethnography and the use of ethnography as a contribution to the generation and modification of indicators Together the collection illustrates the strength and vitality of ethnography Series information at <http://www.elsevier.com> locate series SEE      Religious and Theological Abstracts ,1991      Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2006      Sociological Abstracts ,1994

Methodological Developments in Ethnography Bob Jeffrey, Geoff Troman, 2007-01-10 This volume brings together chapters presenting a diversity of views on some of the current debates and developments in the field of ethnography Topics discussed include participant observation research roles in fieldwork access to places and people in research ethical issues concerning anonymity and intimacy in research and the use of video      ACPTC Proceedings Association of College Professors of Textiles and Clothing, 1983      Small Business Development Ken O'Neill, 1987      Abstracts of the Annual Meeting -- American Anthropological Association American Anthropological Association, 2005      Advances in Mixed-Method Evaluation: The Challenges and Benefits of Integrating Diverse Paradigms Jennifer C. Greene, Valerie J. Caracelli, 1997-06-16 Evaluation theory and practice today are characteristically pluralistic embracing diverse perspectives methods data and values within and across studies that aim to generate more insightful and meaningful evaluative claims This volume of New Directions for Evaluation seeks to strengthen the promise of pluralistic evaluation by advancing an enhanced conceptual framework for planning and implementing mixed method evaluation studies Previous mixed method work has concentrated on the technical level of method focusing on combining qualitative and quantitative methods within one evaluation study The present mixed method volume addresses the philosophical level of paradigm analyzing the challenges of combining in one study different even conflicting assumptions about the nature of social phenomena and our claims to know them The volume argues for a shift in the mixed method conversation The shift would be away from a preoccupation with explicit assumptive differences among paradigms such as objectivity subjectivity and realism relativism and toward other characteristics of social inquiry traditions Such characteristics define these traditions in important ways but are not logically irreconcilable The significant advance here is to redirect the bases for mixing methods away from what may well be incommensurable philosophical assumptions and toward other inquiry characteristics that can more productively share a common analytic space Through analysis of illustrative cases this volume presents an array of conceptual and practical ideas for promising mixed method inquiry directions This is the 74th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Evaluation For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page Toward Establishing Professional Development Schools Phyllis Metcalf Turner,1993
