Decors Geometriques:

Les vases C-Ware a decor geometrique de Nagada I (Egypte, IVe millenaire) Gwenola Graff,2025-12-31 The images left on various media by the pre pharaonic culture of Nagada Egypt in the 4th millennium are abundant and of high quality However they are not always easy to understand or interpret The bowls and vases from Nagada I 3900 3700 BC to which this study is devoted are dark red in color and decorated with simple geometric shapes painted in white For a long time these repetitive monotonous compositions have discouraged researchers and made interpretation difficult It may even be thought that we are dealing with an ornamental composition devoid of any meaning The present study re examines this often neglected group of objects To this end a vast corpus of objects was collected and analyzed To understand these non figurative decorations it was first necessary to devise appropriate methods and conceptual tools drawn from anthropology linguistics and statistics The completed study goes beyond the strict framework of Egyptian predynastic iconography to propose an archaeology of the graphic sign Sahara ,2007 >Versus ad picturas< - Text/Image Relation in Greek, Latin and Arabic Poetry Michele Cutino,Francesco Stella,2026-03-30 Over the last 30 years many books conferences and volumes have been devoted to the relationship between text and image in the Late Antiquity and in the Middle Ages But there has been little space for poetic texts which in addition to the direct or mediated message also demand the attention of the analyst through the impact of the intertext of the entire Latin poetic tradition multiplying the levels of meaning and therefore the possibilities of interpretation In relation to the recognition of the need to consider texts mental or written as sources of inspiration for images we are now in a position to take a further step by applying to medieval culture the concept of iconotext developed by Liliane Louvel 2018 for modern literature In this vein the Versus ad picturas conference therefore aims to contribute to the study of the relationship between the images we now call artistic painted on walls fabrics stained glass or parchments and the verses that often accompany them materially or ideally and which are now increasingly recognised as essential to their cultural understanding and social framing in the hope of bringing us closer to the meaning hidden in their combination and the meaning perceived by the commissioners executors and viewers of the time
