as a tool of investigation analysis control and diagnosis in many fields relevant to physical chemical biological and medical

Furthermore the sensitivity now allows one to detect a single molecule in the restricted field of a confocal microscope which actually offers the possibility to study phenomena at a molecular level The development of new fluorescent probes is still a necessity In particular the growing use of lasers implies high resistance to photo degradation Fluorescence emission at long wavelengths is also a distinct advantage Furthermore in vivo inclusion of new fluorescent aromatic residues in proteins offer new potentialities in biology of ions and molecules is Fluorescence based selective detection still the object of special attention Considerable effort is being made in the design of supramolecular systems in which the recognition event is converted into a fluorescence signal easily detected New fluorescent sensors for clinical diagnosis and detection of pollutants in atmosphere and water are extensively developed All these developments justify the regular publication of books giving the state of the art of the methods and applications of fluorescence spectroscopy National Theatres in a Changing
