Astoria and Empire James P. Ronda,1993-02-01 In late December 1788 a worried Spanish official in Mexico City set down his fears about a new and aggressive northern neighbor Viceroy Manuel Antonio Florez offered a gloomy prediction about the future of Spanish United States relations in the West He already knew about the steady march of frontiersmen toward St Louis and now came troubling word of Robert Gray s ship Columbia on the Northwest coast All this seemed to fit a pattern a design for Yankee expansion We ought not to be surprised warned the viceroy that the English colonies of America now being an independent Republic should carry out the design of finding a safe port on the Pacific and of attempting to sustain it by crossing the immense country of the continent above our possessions of Texas New Mexico and California Canadian fur merchants and Russian bureaucrats also viewed the young republic as a potential rival in the struggle for western dominion The viceroy s vision of the future proved startlingly accurate Within the next two decades an American president would authorize a federally funded expedition to find just the sort of transcontinental route Florez imagined Equally important a New York entrepreneur would propose and put into motion an ambitious plan to make the Northwest an American political and commercial empire John Astor s Pacific Fur Company with Astoria as its central post on the Columbia River was Florez s nightmare come true Astoria had long represented either a daring overland adventure or simply a failed trading venture The Astorians surely had their share of adventure And the Pacific Fur Company never brought its founder the profits he expected But all those involved in the extensive enterprise knew it meant more Thomas Jefferson once described Astoria as the germ of a great free and independent empire believing that the entire American claim to the lands west of the Rockies rested on Astor s settlement at the mouth of the Columbia And John Quincy Adams the expansionist minded secretary of state labeled then entire Northwest as the empire of Astoria This book seeks to explore Astoria as part of a large and complex struggle for national sovereignty in the Northwest The Astorians and their rivals were always engaged in more than trading and trapping They were advance agents of empire from

Astoria and Empire James P. Ronda,1984 Trading Beyond the Mountains Richard S. Mackie,2011-11-01 During the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries the North West and Hudson s Bay companies extended their operations beyond the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean There they encountered a mild and forgiving climate and abundant natural resources and with the aid of Native traders branched out into farming fishing logging and mining Following its merger with the North West Company in 1821 the Hudson s Bay Company set up its headquarters at Fort Vancouver on the lower Columbia River From there the company dominated much of the non Native economy sending out goods to markets in Hawaii Sitka and San Francisco Trading Beyond the Mountains looks at the years of exploration between 1793 and 1843 leading to the commercial development of the Pacific coast and the Cordilleran interior of western North America Mackie examines the first stages of economic diversification in this fur trade region and its transformation into a dynamic and distinctive regional economy He also documents the Hudson s Bay Company s employment of Native slaves and labourers in the North West coast region
