Wife No. 19, Or, The Story of a Life in Bondage, Being a Complete Exposé of Mormonism ... Webb Young,1877

Wife No. 19 Ann Elizabeth Young,2015-02-09 This looks at the Mormon church from the perspective of a woman married to a man practicing polygamy From the intro I have read the advance sheets of Mrs Ann Eliza Young s book with painful interest which has deepened into disgust and pity Disgust at the hypocrisy brutality and diabolism of the Mormon leaders pity for the wasted joyless sacrificial lives of the poor women who immolate themselves on the shrine of Mormonism in the holy name of Religion Born and reared in the midst of these deluded people removed from all counteracting influences it was inevitable that Mrs Young should accept their beliefs and be drawn into their practices And it must have required heroic resolution in her to break away from the Mormon Church even when her vision was unsealed to its rottenness knowing as she did that she would be compelled to flee from home leaving a beloved mother and precious children in the hands of the enemy I congratulate her on her complete emancipation on her reunion with her beloved whose obvious peril weighed so heavily on her filial and maternal heart and on the possession of ability to give to the world an exposé of the Mormon horror such as it has never before received My sympathies are entirely with her in the work to which she has consecrated herself With her awakened conscience she could not do other wise than seek the disintegration of the Utah community whose foundations are laid in the degradation of woman May she have the largest success compatible with human effort
