The Extraordinary Adirondack Journey of Clarence Petty Christopher Angus, 2015-02-25 Author and naturalist Christopher Angus profiles for the first time the adventurous life of Clarence Petty one of the great pioneer conservationists of the Adirondack Mountain region of New York State Raised in the heart of the Adirondack wilderness between Tupper and Saranac Lakes Petty overcame his humble beginnings and pursued a variety of careers as wilderness guide forester Civilian Conservation Corps camp director World War II pilot district ranger and aerial forest fire fighter ultimately leaving his indelible mark as a lifelong advocate for the protection of the wilderness The story of Petty s life reads like a Horatio Alger novel His father moved to the mountains in the 1880s to work as a guide His mother was a cook for one of the popular sportsmen s hotels in the area Young Clarence and his brothers enjoyed the kind of childhood freedom and independence that today s youngsters can only dream about Their father s sense of self reliance and their mother s drive to educate her sons led all three to attend college Clarence followed a path of service to the American landscape His influence on state policy regarding the Adirondack Park and especially its millions of acres of wilderness has been profound His life story provides a window into the politics of conservation in the Adirondack region from the early days of the twentieth century to the present

A History of the Adirondacks, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint) Alfred L. Donaldson, 2015-06-28 Excerpt from A History of the Adirondacks Vol 2 The great abolitionist John Brown linked his name with the Adirondacks by settling in the Town of North Elba in 1849 and making it his nominal home and headquarters until the Harper s Ferry raid and his subsequent death in 1859 His now historic farm is about three miles from the village of Lake Placid to day but then of course there was no village nor promise of one The surrounding country was a sparsely settled wilderness Gerrit Smith the wealthy emancipationist of New York had inherited vast tracts of land from his father Some of these were in Essex County and in the Town of North Elba In 1846 Mr Smith had thrown open one hundred thousand acres of his wild lands to such colored people fugitive slaves in particular as would settle upon small tracts and cultivate them into farms Considerable land was taken up but mostly in other parts of the State for Gerrit Smith s enormous holdings lay in over fifty counties The Adirondack wilderness for obvious reasons was the least attractive and least suited to the negro Its very wildness and remoteness however offered a certain security from the slave hunter and so by 1848 a few families had settled there Others were later brought to the spot by means of the underground railway of which North Elba became a sort of side track station As a negro colony it was a failure and soon dwindled away About this time John Brown heard of Gerrit Smith s scheme and the incipient North Elba colony and it appealed strongly to his sympathies About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish
