

A short time after it was completed, a rival family in Saudi Arabia announced that they would build a taller one (1,000 metres) – the Kingdom Tower – they are literally competing with each other over who can build the world's tallest building. What would motivate Muhammad to even make such a prediction?

If he was going to make up such a prophecy, it would make more sense to relate this prophecy to the superpowers of his time: Rome, Persia or even China who (unlike the Arabs) already had a tendency to construct extravagant buildings and palaces. The Prophet Muhammad himself did not like Muslims to be involved in trying to unnecessarily increase in wealth. Indeed, he often warned of its dangers and how it would corrupt his nation.

What is even more interesting is that he did not like or promote the construction of buildings! He was a simple man who lived in a simple house and wanted other Muslims to maintain that simplicity. That is what he taught and how he lived. If he wanted to “will” this prophecy to become true, he should have encouraged the Arabs to build tall buildings and perhaps start off trying to do that himself! Clearly this prophecy is not some fluke.

Muhammad, peace be upon him, knew parts of the future from God. He was warning mankind about the coming of the last days. We are in those days.
