A La Belle Etoile:

Chanteuse in the City Prof. Kelley Conway, 2004-09-08 Long before Edith Piaf sang La vie en rose her predecessors took to the stage of the belle époque music hall singing of female desire the treachery of men the harshness of working class life and the rough neighborhoods of Paris Icon of working class femininity and the underworld the realist singer signaled the emergence of new cultural roles for women as well as shifts in the nature of popular entertainment Chanteuse in the City provides a genealogy of realist performance through analysis of the music hall careers and film roles of Mistinguett Josephine Baker Fr hel and Damia Above all Conway offers a fresh interpretation of 1930s French cinema emphasizing its love affair with popular song and its close connections to the music hall and the caf concert Conway uncovers an important tradition of female performance in the golden era of French film usually viewed as a cinema preoccupied with masculinity She shows how in films such as P p le Moko Le Crime de Monsieur Lange and Zouzou the realist chanteuse addresses female despair at the hopelessness of love Conway also sheds light on the larger cultural implications of the shift from the intimate caf concert to the spectacular music hall before the talkies displaced both kinds of live performance altogether Drunk in Sunlight Daniel Anderson, 2007 Accessible and wry at times comic and often mournful Daniel Anderson s poetry is relentlessly attentive to the splendors of the natural world But the poems collected here previously published in such leading literary journals as Poetry The Kenyon Review The Southern Review The Yale Review New England Review and Southwest Review are not relegated simply to the realm of pastoral meditation They give voice to the sorrowful and sometimes unfortunate things we say and think They chronicle with both precision and care the many ways in which jubilation and lament frequently reverse themselves Above all else each poem crystallizes in its wake a freshly minted moment one that articulates an experience that reaches beyond the poet s own time and place Sunflowers drenched in early evening sun icy blue explosive waves along the rocky shores of Maine September cotton like strange anachronistic snow in Tennessee Anderson forges these images into deep ruminations on love shame delight loss and estrangement La Belle Etoile [DVD]., 2023 The Fire in All Things Stephen Yenser, 1993-03-01 Selected by Richard Howard from almost one thousand entries Stephen Yenser s The Fire in All Things is the most recent recipient of the Walt Whitman Award given annually by The Academy of American Poets to honor an outstanding collection of verse by an American poet who has not previously published a book length collection The poems in The Fire in All Things are as intricate as vines that intertwine and twist around the trunk of a tree yet high though the poems climb each has its roots in the natural world and in the heart Ruins architectural and emotional fill these poems even as the language restores itself in puns internal rhymes and slant rhymes The long poem Bertumnal begins with these lines Close call close call close call this early in the morning The raucous crows raw caws are ricochets off rock Afloat on wire from a dead tree s branch a piece of charred limb Repeats a finch that perched on it in its last life Here under the pergola loaded with green wisteria Misty air wistful with a few late lavender clusters Light falling in petal sized spots
