A Hollywood Christmas:

Holiday Specials on Television, 1939-2021 Vincent Terrace, 2023-01-27 In November 1939 NBC's fledgling television station W2XBS broadcast the first known holiday special The Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Despite its small viewership, very few TV sets existed at the time; the experimental telecast was a harbinger of a now beloved American tradition: the holiday television special. This book offers a thorough account of holiday television specials in the United States from 1939 to 2021, highlighting variety shows, comedic performances, musical spectaculars, and more. From familiar favorites (1964's Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer) to campy one-offs (1985's He-Man and She-Ra: A Christmas Special), the 1140 programs are covered alphabetically and feature performance casts, production credits, and storylines for each. Three appendices cover lost holiday specials along with Christmas and Halloween-themed episodes of popular television series.

The Midwinter Night's Dreams of the First Hollywood Christmas Festival, 1929-1930 Lewis McKenzie Turner, 1929 Television Specials Vincent Terrace, 2013-07-03 This is a complete revision of the author's 1993 McFarland book Television Specials that not only updates entries contained within that edition but adds numerous programs not previously covered, including beauty pageants, parades, awards programs, Broadway and opera adaptations, musicals produced especially for television, holiday specials (e.g., Christmas and New Year's Eve), the early 1936-1947 experimental specials, honors specials. In short, this is a reference work to 5,336 programs, the most complete source for television specials ever published.

Christmas Poems Zekria Ibrahimi, 2011-06-01 Description: This difficult volume is about the far side of Christmas. We prefer to see only the tree and the tinsel, the mere exterior, and we forget, neglect, ignore the inner soul of religion. And religion can be the most dangerous thing of all. How is this a schizophrenic spin on the Yuletide trivialities? Here is a querulous book that does not witness Christmas and all Christianity through the gaze of respectability but through the poisoned eyes of the doomed, homeless outsider. Some of the verse, which aspires to be as dubious and questionable as possible, was actually done on a psychiatric ward. Christmas and the Faith become emblems of that conventionality which may be so choking for a schizophrenic. The two faces of Christmas, the cynical and the celebratory, are bleakly investigated. Christmas on a psychiatric ward: This is able to be the most pathetically poignant period of all for a patient. Amidst the loud crackers and the greasy mince pies and those cards and presents from the nurses and other patients after the all-too-flatulent Christmas dinner, the merciless medication is still to be dealt out. The schizophrenics are still locked up. Baby Jesus does not intend to liberate the lunatics. So we offer Christmas, Easter, and the Church through a schizophrenic's shattered prism, with everything intentionally deformed, everything chaotically distorted.

About the Author: Zekria Ibrahimi, born in 1959, is defined by his schizophrenia. It first hit him long ago, in his late teens. He is fifty years old now, grey and frail, almost a pensioner with all the aches and injuries of age, and he does not always want to remember how, as an adolescent in the late 1970s, he suddenly became afraid of everything surrounding him, and worst of all, of himself. He would run around the countryside and knock at the doors of strangers because he feared the apocalypse was pursuing him He would pick up rubbish outside in alleys and streets and hoard it in his not very palatial lodgings He was always wandering away from home searching for what would never be found again the straight route the level way He was a tramp freezing during the nights in public toilets where he had various unsavoury insects as company on the cold concrete There were years of pain when his schizophrenia became almost his only companion albeit a sadistic one punishing him even as he hugged it Perhaps to echo both R D Laing and Emily Dickinson it is the entire globe it is general society that is truly insane Schizophrenics simply burrow all too deeply under the surface They reach the very core of the savage reality in us all Most varnish over the anarchic truth within through the superficial sham paraded as civilization Schizophrenics prefer to be uncomfortably honest barbarians Eventually after much psychotic shouting on Hammersmith Broadway the hapless Zekria was confined at the Charing Cross unit in the West London Mental Health Trust Following the unsafe unstable freedom of his schizophrenia came the restrictions of Section 3 He would not have survived without the multi racial compassion of the individual doctors and nurses in Charing Cross Yet the overall SYSTEM remains an ogre of rules and restraints and the INSTITUTION of psychiatry can be as cold and vicious as in the days of lobotomy and insulin shock Now he is elderly but still he muses about being locked up drugged up about how with schizophrenia the treatment can be worse than the disease
