vices without it, are as so many cyphers, they amount to just nothing. And with it, the meanest of them will find acceptance.

You have briefly in the words, Christ's loveliness, and the Christian's love; the former the cause of the latter, both couched under borrowed terms, according to the whole strain of this allegorical song, to which the true experimental knowledge of this divine love is the best commentary.

In all love, three things are necessary. (1.) Some goodness in the object, either true and real, or apparent and seeming to be so; for the soul be it ever so evil, can affect nothing but what it takes some way to be good. (2.) There must be a knowledge of that goodness; for the most excellent things, if altogether unknown, affect not. (3.) There must be a sustainableness or agreement of that good thing with the nature of those which should affect it; otherwise indeed how good soever it is, it is not good to them.

Now all these we have clearly in this love. (1.) The goodness, the excellency of Christ expressed by previous observance. (2.) The manifestation and making of it known, signified by the pointing forth of his name. (3.) His fitness and congruity with them here mentioned, under this denomination virgins; such as have the senses of their souls, not stopt with the pollutions of the world, but pure and active, and therefore as the apostle speaks, Heb. v. 14, exercised to discern good and evil. These three requisites thus happily met, must needs produce love, therefore she loves him.

Because of the armour of thy good observance.] How true is the apostle's word, when he calls Christ the believers' All things? And that radical grace of faith, because it apprehends Christ, hath a kind of universality; and it is reasonable too, it alone being to the soul, what all the five senses are to the body. It is the eye and the mouth, a wonderful eye: It sees him that is invisible, Heb. iv. 17. The mouth, it tastes that the Lord is gracious, 1 Pet. ii. 3. Yes, take
