 and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution

Article 1

Section 1 All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives

Section 2 The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and in each State shall have Representatives equal to the whole or the great part of the next Census. At least of the United States

But no Representative shall be chosen until he has attained to the Age of twenty five Years, and seven Years, a Citizen of the United States, and when elected he shall be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen

The Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors in the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature. Representatives and electors shall be appointed every second Year by the People of the several States, which may be modified within the States, according to the Census, which shall be taken once in seven Years, the first Census being taken three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States. The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and in every subsequent Year, in such Manner as they shall be directed by Law. The Number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand Persons; but each State shall have at least one Representative, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors in the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.
