Constructing the American Past Susan Schulten, 2024-11 What was it like back then What did people think and believe What motivated them to laugh and cry fight and die How did people live Were their homes comfortable Were their workdays long Were their diets sufficient How did they worship if at all These questions and hundreds more surface instantly when historians and students ponder the past Indeed the question What was it like back then is fundamental to any person with a sense of curiosity It also lies at the core of the historical profession Using a wide range of sources historians try to construct what life was like in the past The process of construction is challenging Since the sources needed to answer any important historical question are frequently incomplete contradictory or evasive the writing of history can never be as precise as we would like Imagine putting together a picture puzzle that is supposed to contain 1 000 pieces but half of them have been lost With effort and imagination you might be able to reconstruct the general outlines of the picture The process is roughly akin to historical inquiry Hard work analytical ability and imagination these come into play in both ventures
