

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

States of America

Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Security, and the best Assurance of the Blessings that they have a Right to the same.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly all resistance to such Governments is to be regarded as unjust, unless it is for the purpose of remedying their gross Abuses. But when a long train of such Abuses and Misuses, proving that the Government is intent on the destruction of the Rights of the People, and that they have a Right to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Security, and the best Assurance of the Blessings that they have a Right to the same, it is their Duty, not only to refuse Assent to such Acts, but to throw them away as Scum and Contumacious, and to appeal to the Supreme Judge of the World for their Redress.

And we the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, do hereby declare that these United States are, and of Right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown; and that all former Connections with that Kingdom, are hereby declared to be totally dissolved.

In Witness whereof, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, have hereunto set their hands and seals, the day and date above written.
