Drawing Life Surviving The Unabomber:

Drawing Life David Hillel Gelernter, 1997 On June 24 1993 David Gelernter opened a package that exploded blowing off most of his right hand and damaging his hearing eyesight and chest Ironically the perpetrator the technology phobic mad genius we know as the Unabomber managed to punish one of the very few people who are deeply skeptical about computers and openly critical of technology Perhaps the greater irony is that the bomb meant to destroy a man's life remade it and the wounds meant to break his spirit only strengthened it Now in this haunting memoir Gelernter makes a metaphor of himself seeing in his own near death and recovery the same disfigurement and promise for American society as a whole As he ponders his own spiritual condition and the healing power he found in family religion community and art he critiques the American soul and its devaluing of these very treasures Instead of teaching and lauding the virtues of courage critical thinking and good judgment Americans have made a media circus out of crime We are so busy peeking pruriently into the twisted minds of madmen that we have forgotten the acts of violence are not significant because they tickle our bloodlust but because they force us to rethink our priorities In a power analysis of the media's response to his experience for example Gelernter points out that the Unabomber was described as a genius as sick as fascinating but never as evil Gelernter asks the chilling question What does it mean when a culture no longer believes in evil What happens to a society that has lost its ability to react morally in a crisis After all when a man is blown up by a bomb we should question not gawk learn the deeper lessons not bask in the lurid details A gripping and poignant narrative as well as a thought provoking analysis of our culture and where it's headed Drawing Life is about the resurrection of an extremely thoughtful human being and the extraordinary power of one man's will to live

The Many Faces of Virtue Donald DeMarco, 2000 The Many Faces of Virtue is a personable collection of 48 short essays on the virtues each no longer than six pages Dr DeMarco breathes life to the virtues with both historical and living anecdotes from the lives of such as great heroes as Mahatma Gandhi Helen Keller Pope John Paul II J R R Tolkien and Emily Dickinson
