DREADFUL FIRE! Katherine Solender,1984 Accidents and Violent Death in Early Modern London, 1650-1750
Craig Spence,2016 Between the mid seventeenth and mid eighteenth century more than 15 000 Londoners suffered sudden violent deaths While this figure includes around 3 000 who were murdered or committed suicide the vast majority of fatalities resulted from unexplained violent deaths or accidents In the early modern period accidental and disorderly deaths from drowning falls stabbing shooting fires explosions suffocation and animals and vehicles among others were a regular feature of urban life This book is a critical study of the early modern accident Drawing on the weekly London Bills of Mortality parish burial registers newspapers and other related documents it examines accidents and other forms of violent death in the city with a view to understanding who among its residents encountered such events how the bureaucracy recorded and elaborated their circumstances and why they did so and what practical responses might follow Additionally the book explores the way in which these events were transformed to become a recurring cultural trope in oral textual and visual narratives of metropolitan life and how sudden deaths were understood by early modern mentalities By the mid eighteenth century providential explanations were giving way to a more mechanically rational view that saw accident events as threats to be managed rather than misfortunes to be explained The Dreadful River Cave James Willard Schultz,1920 Tropologia
