

Make This
DRIVE-IN THEATRE
A Regular Habit

The image shows a drive-in theatre at night. A large screen in the center displays a colorful graphic with the text 'Make This DRIVE-IN THEATRE A Regular Habit'. The background of the screen features a beach scene with a beach chair, a beach ball, and a lifeguard stand. The foreground is filled with rows of cars parked in a dark lot, with some lights visible in the distance under a cloudy night sky.

American Drivein:

American Drive Richard Dauch, Hank H. Cox, 2012-09-18 Dauch narrates the story of his successful upstart manufacturing company against the backdrop of nearly 50 years in the auto industry from its glory days to its decline in the face of foreign competition to the recent financial crisis

The American Drive-In Movie Theater Don Sanders, Susan Sanders, 2003-07 The drive in movie theater brought together two distinct American institutions cars and movies Since the earliest drive ins of the 1930s these entertainment complexes have been an integral part of American culture Their appeal stretched to people from all corners of the country offering a place for social gathering and various amusements Take a ride down memory lane in this entertaining look at every aspect of the drive in movie theater the architecture the marquees the cars the food and much more Black and white and color photos along with period ads and other memorabilia provide a highly illustrated tour from the origins of the drive in through its heyday in the 1950s its decline and its subsequent revival

The Drive-In Guy Barefoot, 2023-11-16 The Drive In meaningfully contributes to the complex picture of outdoor cinema that has been central to American culture and to a history of US cinema based on diverse viewing experiences rather than a select number of films Drive in cinemas flourished in 1950s America in some summer weeks to the extent that there were more cinemagoers outdoors than indoors Often associated with teenagers interested in the drive in as a passion pit or a venue for exploitation films accounts of the 1950s American drive in tend to emphasise their popularity with families with young children downplaying the importance of a film programme apparently limited to old low budget or independent films and characterising drive in operators as industry outsiders They retain a hold on the popular imagination The Drive In identifies the mix of generations in the drive in audience as well as accounts that articulate individual experiences from the drive in as a dating venue to a segregated space Through detailed analysis of the film industry trade press local newspapers and a range of other primary sources including archival records on cinemas and cinema circuits in Arkansas California New York State and Texas this book examines how drive ins were integrated into local communities and the film industry and reveals the importance and range of drive in programmes that were often close to that of their indoor neighbours
