Beyond Information The Natural History Of Intelligence:

Beyond Information Tom Stonier, 2012-12-06 Preamble The emergence of machine intelligence during the second half of the twentieth century is the most important development in the evolution of this planet since the origin of life two to three thousand million years ago The emergence of machine intelligence within the matrix of human society is analogous to the emergence three billion years ago of complex self replicating molecules within the matrix of an energy rich molecular soup the first step in the evolution of life The emergence of machine intelligence within a human social context has set into motion irreversible processes which will lead to an evolutionary discontinuity Just as the emergence of Life represented a qualitatively different form of organisation of matter and energy so will pure Intelligence represent a qualitatively different form of organisation of matter energy and life The emergence of machine intelligence presages the progression of the human species as we know it into a form which at present we would not recognise as human As Forsyth and Naylor 1985 have pointed out Humanity has opened two Pandora s boxes at the same time one labelled genetic engineering the other labelled knowledge engineering What we have let out is not entirely clear but it is reasonable to hazard a guess that it contains the seeds of our successors

Emigrating Beyond Earth Cameron M Smith, Evan T. Davies, 2012-06-09 Emigrating Beyond Earth puts space colonization into the context of human evolution Rather than focusing on the technologies and strategies needed to colonize space the authors examine the human and societal reasons for space colonization They make space colonization seem like a natural step by demonstrating that if it will continue the human species 4 million year old legacy of adaptation to difficult new environments The authors present many examples from the history of human expansion into new environments including two amazing tales of human colonization the prehistoric settlement of the upper Arctic around 5 000 years ago and the colonization of the Pacific islands around 3 000 years ago which show that space exploration is no more about rockets and robots than Arctic exploration was about boating

Civilizations Beyond Earth Douglas A. Vakoch, Albert A. Harrison, 2011-09-01 Astronomers around the world are pointing their telescopes toward the heavens searching for signs of intelligent life If they make contact with an advanced alien civilization how will humankind respond In thinking about first contact the contributors to this volume present new empirical and theoretical research on the societal dimensions of the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence SETI Archaeologists and astronomers explore the likelihood that extraterrestrial intelligence exists using scientific insights to estimate such elusive factors as the longevity of technological societies Sociologists present the latest findings of novel surveys tapping into the public s attitudes about life beyond Earth to show how religion and education influence beliefs about extraterrestrials Scholars from such diverse disciplines as mathematics chemistry journalism and religious studies offer innovative solutions for bridging the cultural gap between human and extraterrestrial civilizations while recognizing the tremendous challenges of communicating at interstellar distances At a time when new planets are being discovered around other stars at an unprecedented rate this collection
