

The ABCs of Cardiothoracic Trauma

Blunt cardiac trauma

Penetrating cardiac trauma

Pathophysiology

Three primary physiological disturbances associated with cardiac trauma:

- Haemorrhage
 - Commonly seen in penetrating injuries
- Pericardial tamponade
 - Progressive fall in cardiac output as intrapericardial pressure rises with expanding cardiac tamponade. Ultimate restriction of cardiac output results from external compression to prevent diastolic filling of ventricle
- Cardiac failure
 - Trauma to a heart valve, the conduction bundle or a major coronary artery

Aetiology

Blunt cardiac trauma

- direct impact to the anterior chest
- high-speed sudden deceleration
- compression of the chest
- a combination of the above
- Examples:
 - Motor vehicle accidents
 - Falls
 - Crush injuries
 - Sports-related (baseball hitting chest)
 - Animal-related (kick)

Causes of blunt cardiac trauma

Penetrating cardiac trauma

- Stab wounds
- Gunshot wounds
- Non-firearm related blast injuries and impalements
- Penetration into the heart from a fractured rib

Causes of penetrating cardiac trauma

Cardiac trauma can be grouped by method of injury as either blunt or penetrating with outcomes ranging from lethal injuries to spontaneously resolving arrhythmias. Those with lethal injuries often succumb quickly with some documenting over 90% of individuals expiring before arriving at a hospital, and only a 20-75% survival rate of those that make it to the hospital

Blunt Cardiac Injury (BCI)

- May cause compression of the heart between the sternum and spine
- Blunt injury from a penetrating projectile passing adjacent to but not into the heart can also result in blunt cardiac injury
- can lead to myocardial contusion
 - Valvular or septal abnormalities
 - Acute coronary syndrome
 - Rhythm disturbances
 - Cardiac rupture (less common)

Penetrating Cardiac Injury

- Extent of cardiac injury directly related to size, speed, and trajectory of the projectile or implement
- Other cardiac injuries include
 - Coronary artery lacerations (most often the left anterior descending and diagonal branches)
 - Valve injury
 - Ventricular septal defects
 - Bullet injuries may produce through-and-through injuries resulting in haemorrhage, tamponade, and shock.

detect describe and interpret blunt traumatic injuries to the chest 2 Understand various mechanisms of blunt traumatic injuries to the chest 3 To recognize potential pitfalls during interpretation of patients with cardiothoracic trauma

BACKGROUND Cardiothoracic injuries commonly occur in the context of blunt trauma It is the third most common injury in blunt trauma following head and extremities injuries The majority of cases occur in the setting of vehicle collisions Due to the overall high fatality rate in cardiothoracic injuries 10% rapid detection proper interpretation and timely management of these injuries is important Radiology plays an important role in the management of such injuries Conventional radiography can be used initially and can direct management of several injuries of the chest wall lungs and pleura Computed tomography improves visualization of injuries detected by conventional radiography and is superior in the detection of mediastinal injuries CT can show traumatic injuries even in the setting of a normal radiograph and it can change management in up to 20% of cardiothoracic traumas in patients with an abnormal initial radiograph
