Beyond White Privilege Andrew J. Pierce, 2024-04-23 In the world of academic anti racism the idea of white privilege has become the dominant paradigm for understanding racial inequality Its roots can be traced to radical critiques of racial capitalism however its contemporary employment tends to be class blind ignoring the rifts that separate educated socially mobile elites from struggling working class communities How did this come to be Beyond White Privilege traces the path by which an idea with radical potential got hijacked by a liberal anti racism that sees individual prejudice as racism's primary manifestation and white moral transformation as its appropriate remedy This politics of privilege proves woefully inadequate to the enduring forms of racial and economic injustice shaping the world today For educated white elites privilege recognition has become a ritual of purification distinguishing them from their working class counterparts For the white working class whose privileges have eroded but not disappeared the politics of privilege often looks like class scapegoating a process that has helped to drive increasing numbers of alienated whites into the arms of white nationalist movements This book offers an alternative path an interest convergence approach that recaptures the radical potential of white privilege discourse by emphasizing converging cross racial interests in education housing climate justice and others that reveal that the racial bribe of whiteness is ultimately contrary to the interests of working class whites It will therefore appeal to readers across the social sciences and humanities with interests in issues of racial inequality and social justice

Methodist Education in Peru Rosa del Carmen Bruno-Jofré, 2006-01-01 With research based on extensive primary sources the author examines the activities of the Methodist mission in Peru in particular its educational work within the Peruvian socioeconomic formation and its ideological and intellectual changes Yet her study goes beyond Methodist boundaries Social Gospel doctrine and educational theory which link American Progressivism especially John Dewey's pedagogical ideas with Christianity are also treated at an interdenominational level The book contends that Methodist schools constituted an educational system of their own within a socioeconomic formation of uneven character a society where an imperialist presence was interwoven with pre capitalist as well as local incipient capitalist forms The author's analysis of the political dimension of missionary work from the quest for religious freedom to the attempt to exert influence on social movements leads her to consider the relationships among APRA leaders the missionaries and the interdenominational Committee on Cooperation in Latin America Bruno Jofr argues that Social Gospel doctrines although couched in reformist language were ultimately a vehicle of North American theology This book presents a refreshingly wide perspective on the development of education in the Third World as affected by missionary bodies from the First World
