

BLIND SPOT BIAS

DEFINITION

The blind spot bias refers to the cognitive inconsistency where individuals recognize the impact of biases on the judgments and decisions of others but fail to see the impact of biases on their own decisions. It's the inability to recognize one's own cognitive biases while easily spotting them in others.

EXAMPLES

- Political Views: A person might accuse political opponents of being influenced by media bias, while believing that their own views are based purely on facts.
- Driving Skills: A driver may believe that others are easily distracted or influenced by texting but think they themselves are unaffected by such distractions.
