A Creeping Transformation? Michael W. Bauer, 2014-01-15

A Creeping Transformation? Michael W. Bauer, 2013-03-14 How can we approach the Commission's role as co-manager of policy implementation? Why should we expect the Commission to be pulled into domestic policy execution and to accumulate something like an implementation management capacity? How should we conceptualise the Commission's linkage with post-decision management issues? Finally, how does the Commission's involvement in the application of EU policies if any significantly change everything? Such questions are answered in this study which is concerned with what may be called the implementation management capacity of the European Commission. Simply put, this is the role the Commission plays in the implementation of large-scale European spending programmes. While it is true that the Commission's predominant prerogatives are to draft legislation and facilitate bargaining, it also has a role in post-decision policy management. This role is of increasing importance for the emerging governance of the European Union. Readership: social scientists, journalists, and all those interested in the role of the European Commission in shaping EU policies.

Creep of Crystals Jean-Paul Poirier, 1985-02-28 This textbook describes the physics of the plastic deformation of solids at high temperatures. It is directed at geologists or geophysicists interested in the high-temperature behaviour of crystals who wish to become acquainted with the methods of materials science in so far as they are useful to earth scientists. It explains the most important models and recent experimental results without losing the reader in the primary literature of materials science. In turn, the book deals with the essential solid-state physics, thermodynamics, and hydrostatics of creep, creep models, and their applications in the geological sciences: diffusion, creep, superplastic deformation, and deformation enhanced by phase transformations. Five concluding chapters give experimental results for metals, ceramics, and minerals. There are extensive bibliographies to aid further study.
