Creativity In Science Chance Logic Genius And Zeitgeist:

Creativity in Science Dean Keith Simonton, 2004-05-03 Psychologists sociologists philosophers historians and even scientists themselves have often tried to decipher the basis for creativity in science Some have attributed creativity to a special logic the so called scientific method whereas others have pointed to the inspirations of genius or to the inevitable workings of the zeitgeist Finally some have viewed scientific breakthroughs as the product of chance as witnessed in the numerous episodes of serendipity Too often these four alternative interpretations are seen as mutually exclusive Yet the central thesis of this book is that the chance logic genius and zeitgeist perspectives can be integrated into a single coherent theory of creativity in science But for this integration to succeed chance must be elevated to the status of primary cause Logic genius and the zeitgeist still have significant roles to play but mainly operate insofar as they enhance or constrain the operation of a chance combinatorial process

Creativity in Science Dean Keith Simonton, 2004-05-10 Where do major scientific breakthroughs come from Do they arise from the logic of the scientific method or do they result from flashes of genius Are they the products of some mysterious zeitgeist or spirit of the times or do they emerge from chance or serendipity Dean Simonton provides an answer not by choosing one explanation and ignoring the others but rather by unifying all four perspectives into a single theory in which chance plays the primary role but with the significant involvement of logic genius and zeitgeist

The Nature of Inspiration in Artistic Creativity Mark David Garberich, 2008 Inspiration is a recurrent theme in artistic creativity throughout history and across creative domains but has declined dramatically in use among researchers and psychologists since the late 19th century However it continues to remain in common use among professionals in the creative arts This paper examines the dichotomy between intellectual inquiry and personal accounts of the creative experience within the artistic professions and develops a philosophical argument for reconsideration of the definition and use of the term Part of the argument rests on the claim of uniqueness of the creative experience in the arts in the areas of the creative personality creative environment creative process and creative product Upon the basis of observable characteristics of inspiration as an experience the author offers a broadened definition of inspiration and makes specific and practical recommendations for music education instruction in the area of creativity and music composition

The Creating Brain Nancy C. Andreasen, 2005 In her tour of creativity and the brain Nancy Andreasen professor of psychiatry at the University of Iowa and the winner of the National Medal of Science shows us that creativity is not the same as intelligence nor the same as skill Rather we discover the essence of creativity is to shape the materials of life in new and unexpected ways Andreasen explores how the human brain achieves creative breakthroughs in art literature music and science the role of genes and environment extraordinary creativity vs ordinary creativity the possession of a omnivorous vision the value of not having a standard education and the question of genius and insanity The author examines what extraordinary creators such as Mozart Henri Poincare and Coleridge said about creating and how their insights reflect particular qualities of creative people and the creative process She includes her fascinating interview with the playwright Neil Simon in which he described how his mind and brain work Andreasen also shows how her studies of participants in the Iowa Writer s Workshop and other evidence suggest that while creativity often may be inherited and may sometimes be associated with mental disorders neither is inevitable or necessary for creativity to flourish The Creating Brain offers insight into what creates the creative brain and offers advice to nurture it in both children and adults and the Dynamic of Jewish Culture Shlomo Berger, Irene E. Zwiep, 2008 The articles collected in this volume were originally presented at a summer colloquium in Oxford in 2004 The epigone is generally believed to be an imitator deprived of an independent original talent He necessarily follows in someone else's footsteps a source of inspiration that can or indeed must be identified The epigone can operate only after a certain span of time during which he has studied his example and learned how to follow in his master's footsteps An epigone is always influenced by it consciously or unconsciously by another person or by the surrounding cultural climate The epigone is per definition second rate Furthermore it is believed that the epigonic product cannot have an independent value Its only value lies in demonstrating a condition in culture a spirit of the area a trend in the arts philosophy or any other human occupation Rather than continuing to view epigonism as a natural if regrettable part of the cultural process an inevitable secondary stage within the development of any corpus the essays in this volume approach the phenomenon from a perspective that is at once more neutral and more positive They do so not by rehabilitating the quality of the epigone's output but by redefining his role within the cultural process per se In each of these contributions epigones appear as the true carriers of in this case Jewish culture Rather than mere witnesses or at best historical mirrors of primary canonical cultural codes and modes they represent one of the dynamic forces within the development of a culture For the epigone is not merely imitating but also disseminating It is not the isolated peaks of the cultural panorama that the articles in this book seek to map out but the modest planes that allow us to travel the landscape in the first place

BOOK JACKET Epigonism

Interconnectedness and the Individual Nicole S. Porter, Nancy Bothne, Leonard Jason, 2009 This book addresses manifestations and consequences of the concept of the Self from Nativism Taking an historical perspective an attempt is made to offer a dynamic systems perspective and to describe an alternative utilising examples from Social Darwinism genetics fetal development brain plasticity and the education system to the international human rights movement Doing this the authors call into question the goal of respecting all values and behaviours in a given society Arguing against moral relativism the authors propose the necessity for foundational values that arguably already govern Community Psychology

Psyche in the Lab Mary Violette Seeman, Neil Seeman, 2006 Commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Canadian Psychiatric Research Foundation this volume celebrates the creativity and dedication of Canadian scientists who have helped unravel some of the mysteries of the mind over recent years The authors used criterion based techniques to select 16 leading scientists for semi structured interviews as well as well known philanthropists policy makers and psychiatric survivors The fascinating interviews and reports not only show what motivates such outstanding individuals but also describe what Canada and other countries can do to encourage more and better neuroscience Those interviewed or reported on include researchers like Martin Alda Dan Offord Bruno Cormier Cheryl Grady
