Words and Silence Thérèse Lentfoehr, 1979 Words and Silence On the Poetry of Thomas Merton brings to the study of the late Trappist monk's verse the special perceptions born of a friendship of nearly three decades duration It started with a brief correspondence between two poets in 1939 two years before Merton entered the monastery of Gethsemani in Kentucky and lasted until his tragic accidental death in 1968 Throughout these years Sister Therese Lentfoehr held a number of university positions in her native Wisconsin and elsewhere all the while amassing an extensive Merton archival collection including various drafts of individual poems and prose pieces translations books and pamphlets and even portions of hand written private journals The comparison of variant readings sometimes three or four drafts of a single poem proved invaluable in preparing this study But of greater worth was the continued intellectual sharing that not only gave Sister Therese growing insight into Merton the monk and contemplative but afforded her a working understanding as it were of his poetic vision Beginning with his pre Trappist writing and his first published collection in 1911 Sister Therese systematically analyses the entire corpus of Merton's poetry the earlier monastic preoccupations to the later Zen influences the recurrent religious and social themes the increasingly surreal imagery and the developing antipoetry of his final books Provided with a bibliography and index Words and Silence is a recommended companion to The Collected Poems of Thomas Merton 1977 a key to the very mind and spirit of an extraordinary monk and poet

Thomas Merton and the Celts Monica R. Weis,2016-09-19 Thomas Merton and the Celts offers a new lens through which to view Merton s life and spirituality By examining unpublished letters notebooks and taped conferences for the Trappist novices previously unavailable to the general reader the author breaks new ground in Merton studies revealing Merton s growing fascination with his Welsh ancestry Celtic monasticism and early Irish hermit poetry Merton having immersed himself in reading about Celtic Christianity not just about liturgy but about household rituals illuminated manuscripts high crosses and hermit poetry as well recognized in these ancient hermits who lived on water and herbs experienced kinship with creatures and wrote poems about the birds a mirror of his own desires Indeed in a profound way and at a deep level Merton discovered himself in Celtic Christianity

Thomas Merton's Gethsemani Monica Weis,2014-10-17 For twenty seven years renowned and beloved monk Thomas Merton 1915 1968 belonged to Our Lady of Gethsemani a Trappist monastery established in 1848 amid the hills and valleys near Bardstown Kentucky In Thomas Merton s Gethsemani dramatic black and white photographs by Harry L Hinkle and artful text by Merton scholar Monica Weis converge in a unique experience for lovers of Merton Hinkle was allowed unprecedented access to many areas inside the monastery and on its grounds that are generally restricted His photographs invite the reader to experience the various knobs lakes woods and hermitages Merton sought out for times of solitude and contemplation and for reading and writing These unique images each accompanied by a passage from Merton s writings evoke personal reflection and a deeper understanding of how and why Merton came to recognize himself as a part of his Kentucky landscape Woven throughout the book Weis s text explores Merton s fascination with nature not only at Gethsemani but during his early childhood throughout his spiritual conversion to Roman Catholicism and while a member of the Trappist community She examines how Merton s lifelong interaction with nature subtly revealed and informed his profound spiritual experiences and his writing about contemplation Thomas Merton s Gethsemani replicates Merton s path
