

Preparing your students for blended learning

Plan with students' other commitments in mind

Be mindful of students' other commitments when planning sessions and assessments.

Give your students planning tools themselves

Give students early access to the course schedule so they can plan their studies.

Communicate expectations

Early in the course, make sure your students know what's expected of them: e.g. anticipated hours of self-study.

Let your students get to know one another

Provide an early opportunity for students to get to know each other, e.g. an ice-breaker activity.

Listen to feedback & use it to improve a course

Encourage student feedback during a course and at the end so you can improve the course for the next cohort.

College Teaching And Learning Preparing For New Commitments:

College Teaching and Learning Robert E. Young, 1988 University Teaching James J.F. Forest, 2014-04-08 University and college teaching is an important topic in the study of higher education around the world This collection of original essays provides a broad perspective on the issue by examining preparation assessment and reward from cross cultural perspectives and exploring the cultural and social influences that affect these dimensions Routledge Library Editions: Higher Education Various, 2021-03-29 The volumes in this set originally published between 1964 and 2002 draw together research by leading academics in the area of higher education and provide a rigorous examination of related key issues The volume examines the concepts of learning teaching student experience and administration in relation to the higher education through the areas of business sociology education reforms government educational policy business and religion whilst also exploring the general principles and practices of higher education in various countries This set will be of particular interest to students and practitioners of education politics and sociology Higher Education in the United States James J. F. Forest, Kevin Kinser, 2002-06-21 Surveys the changing landscape of American higher education from academic freedom to virtual universities from campus crime to Pell Grants from the Student Privacy Act to student diversity In the years following World War II college and university enrollment doubled students revolted faculty unionized and community colleges evolved Tuition and technology soared as did the number of first generation minority and women students These changes radically transformed the American system of postsecondary education Today that system is in trouble Its aging professoriate prepares for retirement but low academic salaries can no longer attract the best minds to replace them A flood of corporate dollars funds commercial research but money for basic research the seedbed of American scientific preeminence has dried up Colleges and universities also face heated competition with for profit education providers for students faculty and external financial support along with the costs of providing remedial education to growing numbers of students who are unprepared for postsecondary education Higher Education in the United States provides a comprehensive analysis of these issues and others that scholars and practitioners of higher education study discuss and grapple with on a daily basis Improving College Teaching Maryellen Weimer, 1990-01-22 This book shows college administrators deans department heads and faculty development professionals how to improve the instructional performance of faculty members It offers strategies for overcoming resistance and motivating faculty members to improve their teaching and identifies the resources activities and services that will help them to succeed Teachers Who Teach Teachers Tom Russell, Fred Korthagen, 2013-09-13 This is a reflection on the education of teachers written by teacher educators who discuss features of their work and the challenges facing teacher education in the 1990s The book invites the reader to attempt similar analyses of personal practice and development in their own teaching The book deals with the personal development of both new and experienced teacher educators illustrating how strongly teacher educators are influenced by their visions and by the challenge to prove themselves in the university setting In addition the book examines the ways in which teacher educators have acted to promote their own professional development and study their own practices including writing as a tool for reflection a life history approach to self study as well as a study of educative relationships with others and the analysis of a personal return to the classroom Finally it takes a broader look at the professional development of teacher educators and offers a challenge to all teacher educators to consider the tension between rigour and relevance College Teaching Robert J.

Menges,Marilla D. Svinicki,1991 This issue of New Directions for Teaching and Learning elaborates three theoretical perspectives through which teaching can be viewed and explores their implications for the practice of teaching These theoretical perspectives are the cognitive which deals primarily with strategies by which information is processed the motivational which deals primarily with how learning is initiated and sustained and the social which examines the interpersonal context of teaching and learning This volume also discusses personal implicit theories and how instructors can weave multiple perspectives together to solve instructional problems This is the 45th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Teaching and Learning For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

McLeod,1988 The Journal of Professional Legal Education ,1993 Teaching in the Information Age Michael J.

Albright,David Lee Graf,1992 This volume examines some of the current trends instructional technology in higher education and discusses their implications for teaching and learning in the post secondary setting Student Self-Evaluation:

Fostering Reflective Learning Jean MacGregor,1993 For several decades college teachers have been asking students to engage in self evaluation to reflect on their academic work and describe and evaluate it in writing Student self evaluation is both a process consisting of acts of reflecting composing and writing and a product a written document Student self evaluation does not obviate the need for student exams and papers crucial indicators of student mastery of material or complexity of thinking Rather student self evaluation supplements and complements that information by asking students to describe in their own words their learning and its value to them This writing and the conversations that faculty members and students have about it can be instructional illuminating and at times transformative Student self evaluation is primarily a learning strategy but it is also a promising assessment approach while enriching learning for students it also can help teachers and institutions learn about student learning This volume of New Directions for Teaching and Learning introduces the many forms of student self evaluation in undergraduate teaching settings and describes how student self evaluation creates connections between learners and learning knowers and the known and the self and the mind This is the 56th issue
