

The background of the cover is a detailed microscopic image of plant tissue. It shows a cross-section of a stem or leaf with various layers of cells. On the left, there's a thick, multi-layered structure, possibly a vascular bundle or a protective layer. The central and right portions show more regular, grid-like cell arrangements. The colors are primarily light green and yellow, with some brownish spots and structures. The overall appearance is that of a biological specimen under a microscope.
