BOOK JACKET The Inner World of the Mother Dale Mendell, Patsy Turrini, 2003 Personal and Family Factors Related to Service-learning in an Undergraduate Course on Diversity Kathleen G. Zawacki, 1997 The Transforming Power Of Affect Diana Fosha, 2000-05-05 A groundbreaking examination of the transformational power of affect and a technique for harnessing it in the psychotherapeutic setting The first model of accelerated psychodynamic therapy to make the theoretical why as important as the formula for how Fosha s original technique for catalyzing change mandates explicit empathy and radical engagement by the therapist to elicit and harness the patient s own healing affects Its wide open window on contemporary relational and attachment theory ushers in a safe emotionally intense experience based pathway for processing previously unbearable feelings This is a rich fusion of intellectual rigor clinical passion and practical moment by moment interventions

The Habitat of Licensed Child Care Providers Ruth Harding Weaver,2001 Adult Attachment and the Organization of Affective Experience Phillip Blumberg,1997 Mother-Child and Father-Child Psychotherapy Miriam Ben-Aaron,J. Harel,2000-10-19

Mother child and father child psychology is a psychodynamic developmental approach to relatively short term treatment of relational disturbances in young children The mother child father child and mother father dyads meet in weekly meetings with the same therapist in the same physical set up The therapist as a participant observer in recurrent patterns of interactions and relations within the dyads explicitly conveys to each parent that his her unique role to their child is to be respected and validated The approach is practised as a diagnostic assessment tool to help in the placing of pathology as a preparation in some cases for individual therapy for the child or simultaneous treatment for child and parent and as a treatment of choice for the relational disturbances between parents and their developmentally prelatency children This book provides an overview of theoretical similarities and differences in basic aspects of the parent child therapies and offers a detailed description of the main features of a new model that enhances the parents and the child s experiential learning
