Attention Selective Processes In Vision And Hearing:

Attention Neville Moray, 2017-03-27 The early years of modern experimental psychology were marked by a considerable amount of research on attention and much work was carried out in the laboratories of Wundt Titchener and Helmholtz For various reasons research on attention declined from 1920 until the 1950s Under the early philosophy of behaviourism attention became suspect as a mentalistic concept At the time of original publication in 1969 however much work had been done to quantify and make objective research in this area This was of increasing importance in a world dominated by communication networks and man machine systems in which the human element is the weakest link due to the limits on the rate at which man can handle information Following the publication of Broadbent's Perception and Communication in 1958 work on attention had begun to pour from an ever increasing number of laboratories This book is dedicated to summarising what we knew and attempts to survey the behavioural research in vision and hearing which throw light on how we share and direct attention what are the limits of attention to make some general methodological recommendations to review current theories of the time and to provide a guide to the relevant physiological work As far as possible work on memory has been omitted A bibliography of the major work to the spring of 1969 is included Attention: Selective Processes in Vision and Hearing Neville Moray, 1970

Basic Processes in Reading David LaBerge, S. Jay Samuels, 2017-03-27 Originally published in 1977 this volume contains the most recent theoretical views and experimental findings by prominent psychologists at the time working in areas they considered to be most basic to the reading processes The material will still be of value to people interested in applied and basic aspects of reading as well as those concerned with language processing and information processing in general The volume divides conveniently into two areas perception and comprehension The initial chapters deal with the perceptual processes involved in reading The second half of the volume delves into the area of comprehension The interested reader will find a wide variety of topics covered in the volume that reflect the amazingly wide range of cognitive functions that are part of the reading process Visual Attention Richard D. Wright, 1998 This is the eighth volume in the Vancouver Studies in Cognitive Science Series It contains articles by eminent scholars who examine the processes involved in visual attention and the underlying physiological mechanisms that may be responsible for these processes Binocular rivalry: a gateway to consciousness Alexander Maier, Theofanis Panagiotaropoulos, Naotsugu Tsuchiya, Georgios A. Keliris, Brain mind problems like consciousness have been stimulating the interest of philosophers and scientists since the ancient times In the last decades the dramatic development of neuroscience has allowed studying such phenomena at several different levels from single neurons to behavior Binocular rivalry a paradigm dissociating the sensory input from the conscious perception during dichoptic viewing of incongruent images has been a celebrated example of such a tool During the last century empirical research on binocular rivalry contributed the first important insights into the neuronal mechanisms of subjective visual perception Recent advances in brain imaging and electrophysiological recording stimulating techniques as well as novel theoretical concepts and analytical methods could be exploited to expand our knowledge on this fascinating phenomenon of visual perception and elucidate the neural processes underlying visual consciousness This Research Topic aims to bring together contributions that could expand the current frontiers of knowledge in binocular rivalry In particular we would like to focus on reviews hypothesis theory or original research articles that specifically combine novel concepts analytical tools and neurophysiological techniques with binocular rivalry We expect that these contributions will integrate the vast knowledge already existing in the field b formulate and when possible address questions under the light of recent methodological advances in neuroscience and c provide a benchmark that will stimulate future cutting edge research
