

The Dutchess County Poorhouse | 1864-1998

The Dutchess County Poorhouse, later known as the almshouse, home, and infirmary, operated here from 1864 to 1998. It provided residential care for the destitute, ill, and abandoned residents of the county and transients. The nearby Brier Hill Cemetery is the final resting place for some of these individuals.

What was a Poorhouse and a Pauper?

In the 1820s, the New York State Assembly passed a series of laws requiring counties to create special facilities, called poorhouses or houses, to support impoverished residents. Populations distinguished between "paupers," who were victims of circumstances beyond their control and deserving of support, and the "indigent," who were lazy and did not merit aid. In 1830, Dutchess County and the City of Poughkeepsie built a joint poorhouse on the north end of the city to care for paupers.
