Morgan,2024-01-25 A study of the emergence of climate change as a political concern in the international arena since the 1950s and how international stakeholders have responded to it Grounding Global Climate Change Heike Greschke, Julia Tischler,2014-09-25 This book traces the evolution of climate change research which long dominated by the natural sciences now sees greater involvement with disciplines studying the socio cultural implications of change In their introduction the editors chart the changing role of the social and cultural sciences delineating three strands of research socio critical approaches which connect climate change to a call for cultural or systemic change a mitigation and adaption strand which takes the physical reality of climate change as a starting point and focuses on the concerns of climate change affected communities and their participation in political action and finally culture sensitive research which places emphasis on indigenous peoples who contribute the least to the causes of climate change who are affected most by its consequences and who have the least leverage to influence a solution Part I of the book explores interdisciplinarity climate research and the role of the social sciences including the concept of ecological novelty an assessment of progress since the first Rio climate conference and a global village case study from Portugal Part II surveys ethnographic perspectives in the search for social facts of global climate change including climate and mobility in the West African Sahel and human non human interactions and climate change in the Canadian Subarctic Part III shows how collaborative and comparative ethnographies can spin global webs of local knowledge describing case studies of changing seasonality in Labrador and of rising water levels in the

Chesapeake Bay These perspectives are subjected to often amusing always incisive analysis in a concluding chapter entitled You Ain t Seen Nothing Yet a death defying look at the future of the climate debate The contributors engage critically with the research subject of climate change itself reflecting on their own practices of knowledge production and epistemological presuppositions Finely detailed and sympathetic to a broad range of viewpoints the book sets out a profile for the social sciences and humanities in the climate change field by systematically exploring methodological and theoretical challenges and approaches

Atmospheres of Violence Eric A. Stanley, 2021-09-03 Advances in LGBTQ rights in the recent past marriage equality the repeal of Don t Ask Don t Tell and the expansion of hate crimes legislation have been accompanied by a rise in attacks against trans queer and or gender nonconforming people of color In Atmospheres of Violence theorist and organizer Eric A Stanley shows how this seeming contradiction reveals the central role of racialized and gendered violence in the United States Rather than suggesting that such violence is evidence of individual phobias Stanley shows how it is a structuring antagonism in our social world Drawing on an archive of suicide notes AIDS activist histories surveillance tapes and prison interviews they offer a theory of anti trans queer violence in which inclusion and recognition are forms of harm rather than remedies to it In calling for trans queer organizing and worldmaking beyond these forms Stanley points to abolitionist ways of life that might offer livable futures
