Attitudinal Judgment:

Attitudinal Judgment Richard J. Eiser, 2012-12-06 Despite the central place that the study of attitudes has long held in social psychological research the last decade or so has been relatively quiet as far as the development of attitude theory has been concerned If one looks back to the Yale studies on communication and persuasion in the 1950s followed by the massive literature derived from cognitive dissonance theory and its alternatives there may be a temptation to think that the well of researchable questions has run almost dry The purpose of this book is to convince the reader that this is not the case On the contrary a new look at the concept of attitude offers the prospect of as rich and varied a range of questions as ever before The term new look is an old one in social psychology It was used 30 to 40 years ago as the designation for the school of thought which held that basic psychological processes such as perception cognition learning and memory could be influenced by attitudes motives and values There are still lessons to be learned from that period and the new new look that is now emerging incorporates some of these same themes albeit in the context of changing issues and emphases Attitude in Relation to the Psychophysical Judgment ... Salem Shihadeh George, 1917 Social Judgment and Intergroup Relations Donald Granberg, Gian Sarup, 2012-12-06 Social Judgment and Intergroup Relations Essays in Honor of Muzafer Sherif is a stimulating collection which paints a crisp and fascinating picture of social psychology during its decades of growth into a mature science With his important contributions in the study of social norms attitudes self concept group relations and other areas Muzafer Sherif was a key figure in the discipline Each essay in this book illustrates the lasting influence of Muzafer Sherif's seminal work in social psychology Cognitive Responses in Persuasion Richard Petty, T. M. Ostrom, T. C. Brock, 2014-06-17 First published in 1982 This collaborative product of leading contributors seeks to update information on the psychology of attitudes attitude change and persuasion Social psychologists have invested almost exclusively in the strategies of theory testing in the laboratory in contrast with qualitative or clinical observation and the present book both exemplifies and reaps the products of this mainstream tradition of experimental social psychology It represents experimental social psychology at its best It does not try to establish contact with the content oriented strategies of survey research which have developed in regrettable independence of the laboratory study of persuasion processes The Effect of Vividness on Attitudinal Judgment Jolita Kisielius, 1982 The Construction of Social Judgments Leonard L. Martin, Abraham Tesser, 2013-05-13 Researchers have been addressing social judgment from a cognitive perspective for more than 15 years Within recent years however it has become increasingly clear that many of the models and assumptions initially adopted are in need of revision The chapters in this volume point out where the original models and assumptions have fallen short and suggest directions for future research and theorizing The contributors address issues related to judgment memory affect attitudes and self perception In addition many present theoretical frameworks within which these different issues can be integrated As such this volume represents the transition from one era of social cognition research to the next The Height

Richard Eiser, 1991      Attitude and Attitude Change Carolyn W. Sherif, Muzafer Sherif, Roger Ellis Nebergall, 1965 In this book the social judgment involvement approach to the study of attitude and attitude change are presented The book outlines a systematic framework substantiated by a series of new research findings many of them published previously The approach has shaped itself gradually during the last thirty years as authors have proceeded cautiously and at times slowly At every step the authors took stock of material from the research of others as well as theirs

Richard Eiser, 1987 The Expression of Attitude deals with a number of broad but interrelated questions what are attitudes how do they relate to behavior how are they acquired and in what ways can they be shared The author argues that consistency within attitude structure and between attitudes and behavior arises primarily from interpersonal rather than intrapersonal processes Emphasis is placed on how people interpret behavior as an expression of attitude and what they demand of such behavior before they treat it as decodable in a particular way      An Examination Into the Construction and Retrieval of Evaluative Judgements Dhananjay Nayakankuppam, 2001      The Status of Religious Instruction for Children Under Sixteen Years of Age Frank Evans Swindells, Quincy Alvin W.
