Borderline Marita van der Vyver,2019-11-01 A letter among her deceased ex husband s belongings rips open Theresa s world For years she has turned her back on Theo a man who spent the last two decades of his life institutionalised and on their shared past in a country where teenage boys were conscripted to fight on the Border in a war that those back home knew little about Least of all Theresa who spent her days dreaming of discos and first kisses Realising that the letter was written by a Cuban soldier and addressed to his child who if still alive would be at least forty years old Theresa heads for Cuba to search for the soldier s child to deliver the letter to atone in some way for Theo s deeds and for her own ignorance In sultry Cuba amid its picturesque 1950s cars and the fragrant smoke of its cigars Theresa s search connects her intimately with those branded the enemy during the war in Angola as she begins to unravel what growing up in the South Africa of that time really meant

Wildlife Films Derek Bouse,2000 If as many argue movies and television have become Western culture s premier storytelling media so too have they become for most members of society the primary source of encounters with the natural world particularly wild animals The television fare offered nightly by national and cable networks such as PBS and the Discovery Channel provides millions of viewers with their only experience of the wilderness and its inhabitants

The very films that so many viewers take as accurate portrayals of wildlife however have evolved primarily as a form of entertainment following the established codes and conventions of narrative exposition. The result has been not the representation of nature but its wholesale reconstruction and reconfiguration according to film and television conventions, audience expectations and the demands of competition in the media marketplace. Wildlife Films traces the genealogy of the nature film from its origins as the animal locomotion studies that mark the very beginnings of motion pictures themselves to the founding of the Animal Planet cable channel that boasts all animals all the time. The narrative and thematic elements that unite wildlife films as a genre have their roots not in the documentary film tradition but in the older traditions of oral and written animal fables as reflections of human society. Bous contends that classic wildlife films often portray animal protagonists living in families modeled on an ideal of the human nuclear family and working in communities that resemble an ideal of bucolic human society. In these stories presented as documentaries, animals are motivated by human emotions and conduct relationships according to human customs. This imposition of culturally satisfying narrative patterns upon the lives of animals has not only led to the misrepresentation of the natural world, it has promoted the notion that our values, our moral vision, our models of society and family structure derive from nature rather than being cultural formations.

From A to Biba Barbara Hulanicki, 2007-06. Barbara Hulanicki tells the story of the rise and fall of the tiny chaotic boutique that grew into a vast emporium and epitomised Swinging London. The Biba store was to become an icon of hip 60s and 70s London and a hangout for artists, film stars and rock musicians including the Rolling Stones, David Bowie, Twiggy, Brigitte Bardot and Marianne Faithfull. But in the early 1970s Hulanicki and her husband Stephen Fitz Simon lost control after a series of bitter boardroom struggles and for Barbara Biba was lost. This lively autobiography evokes the adventurous spirit of the 1960s and describes an extraordinary life with clarity and wit.
