Baghdad Sketches Freya Stark, 1996 In the fall of 1928 thirty five year old Freya Stark set out on her first journey to the Middle East She spent most of the next four years in Iraq and Persia visiting ancient and medieval sites and traveling alone through some of the wilder corners of the region Baghdad Sketches. With Plates. Freya Stark, 1937

Baghdad Sketches, by Freya Stark Freya Stark, 1938 Handbook of British Travel Writing Barbara Schaff, 2020-09-07 This handbook offers a systematic exploration of current key topics in travel writing studies It addresses the history impact and unique discursive variety of British travel writing by covering some of the most celebrated and canonical authors of the genre as well as lesser known ones in more than thirty close reading chapters Combining theoretically informed astute literary criticism of single texts with the analysis of the circumstances of their production and reception these chapters offer excellent possibilities for understanding the complexity and cultural relevance of British travel writing Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine Gary Fisher, David Robinson, 2021-09-07 Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine is an anthology of travel accounts by a diverse range of writers and academics Challenging conventional academic authority each contributor writes from memory during the Covid 19 lockdown about a place they have previously visited accompanied by an historical traveller who published an account of the same place As immobility is forced upon us at least for the immediate future we have the chance to reflect Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine presents opportunities to approach a text as a scholar differently We break with the traditional academic rules by inserting ourselves into the narrative and foregrounding the personal subjective elements of literary scholarship Each contributor critiques an historical description of a place about which simultaneously they write a personal account The travel writer Philip Marsden posits a fundamental difference between traditional academic writing and travel writing in that travel narratives do not or ought not anyway begin by assuming a scholarly authoritative understanding of the places they describe Instead they attempt to say what they found and how they felt about it The very good point we think Marsden makes and the one this book tries to demonstrate is that as a matter of form the first person narrative has the ability to expose the research process to allow the reader to see when and how a scholarly transformation takes place to give the scholar the opportunity to openly foreground their own subjectivity and say this is the personal journey that led me to my conclusions to problematize the unchallenged authority of the scholar Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine challenges the idea of scholarly authority by embracing the subjective nature of research and the first person element We address a problematic distance between travel writing practice and travel writing scholarship in which the latter talks about the former without ever really talking to it Defining travel writing as a genre has often proved more difficult than it might seem but Peter Hulme has suggested that it is ethically necessary for the writer to have visited the place described Hulme asserts that travel writing is certainly literature but it is never fiction If this seems obvious Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine asks the reader to consider the idea that if visiting the place described is necessary for the writer to claim they have produced a travel account might it also be necessary or at least advantageous and valuable for the writer of a scholarly critique of that account to have done the same
