Unwrapping Balzac Samuel Weber, 1979 This radically new reading of La peau de charin presents a case for Balzac as a modern rather than a traditional realist writer Using the principles and languages of Marx Derrida Freud Barthes and others who have contributed to a redefinition of modern criticism Samuel Weber presents a detailed and intricate explication of the text that challenges all standard interpretations of the novel Traditional readings of La peau de chagrin and of Balzac in general have pursued a message in the novel a reality beneath the allegory Weber demonstrates that Balzac's text can be grasped both as a mise en scène and as a play of representations that reflects no original truth reality or meaning beneath the text to which the representation can be referred and by which they can be authenticated To unwrap Balzac in this manner is to discover that there is no thing inside that there is only the wrapping Weber s conclusions are not only startlingly original but they also solve problems which have puzzled traditional readers of the novel since the earliest commentators of 1831 Unwrapping Balzac is a brilliant tour de force that will create controversy among Balzac scholars for years to come

The Doctor-Patient Relationship and the Nineteenth-Century French Novel Sarah Jones,2025-03-29 The Doctor Patient Relationship and the Nineteenth Century French Novel analyses the representation of the doctor patient relationship in the nineteenth century French novel notably in the words of Balzac Sand Stendhal and Zola It argues that the doctor patient relationship is represented in these novels as a site of interpersonal negotiation wherein the meaning of medical authority embodied experience and the spectre of illness and pain are mediated and reimaged This book highlights how the doctor patient relationship is often idealized by the novel wherein the doctor is characterised as a both dedicated to his patients and local community as well as being a God like master of life death and medical knowledge The volume suggests that the doctor patient encounter is often depicted as a separate although inherently related concept that undermines this idealisation of medical relationships The doctor patient encounter thereby questions the hegemonic power of medical practitioners over their patients by pointing towards how novels depict patients as resisting and even manipulating their doctors The book identifies and explores other important themes within the doctor patient relationship such as the medical gaze regard m dical power relationships and the use of embodied metaphor In particular the book highlights how the doctor patient relationship is often a confrontation between scientific knowledge and the experience of gender and disability The book s conceptual framework is derived from the critical medical humanities and the volume revitalises and reframes the doctor patient relationship by considering the intrinsic slippage between idealised relationships and critical encounters The book uses close readings of its corpus to understand how medical practice is debated and undermined concurrently with its idealisation It places literary works within a new historical context by reading across novels within their medical and scientific context and situates them for the first time in the intellectual context of the critical medical humanities The book points forward to how nineteenth century French novels can reform how the critical medical humanities views the medical relationship and the potential impact on real world patients
