Banners South:

Banners South Edmund J. Raus, 2005 The personal story of the men and women of Cortland New York and their efforts to support the war effort Most regimental histories focus narrowly on military affairs and the battlefield exploits to the exclusion of the broader social and political context while community studies examine civilian life divorced of the military situation Banners South documents the influences and events that define the Civil War from the perspective of Northern soldiers and civilians moving beyond the boundaries of the battlefield by exploring the civilian community Cortland New York which contributed many men to the 23d New York Volunteers Author Ed Raus uses original source material to examine the Northern soldier his attitude toward Southerners blacks and officers and reasons why he fought and provides detailed portrayals of major battles Second Bull Run Antietam and Fredericksburg He also explores the New Yorkers experiences with Southern civilians including women and slaves when the troops served as an occupying force in Fredericksburg Virginia The 23d New York served during the first two years of the Civil War and the men from Cortland found their tour hard to forget As Raus s study reveals many of the unit s survivors had a difficult time resuming their peaceful prewar lives Raus narrates these men s stories of war and homefront with care and thoughtful analysis Banners South promises to alter the traditional genre of regimental histories and will be of interest to Civil War scholars and buffs alike This is the first book in the Civil War in the North Series which will highlight innovative scholarship that broadens our understanding of what the American Civil War meant to Northern society This new series will encompass overlooked and under researched topics from the battlefield to the homefront from the antebellum era through Reconstruction Chow, 2021-10-15 Schism is the first ethnographic and historical study of Seventh day Adventism in China. Scholars have been slow to consider Chinese Protestantism from a denominational standpoint. In Schism, the first monograph that documents the life of the Chinese Adventist denomination from the mid 1970s to the 2010s, Christie Chui Shan Chow explores how Chinese Seventh day Adventists have used schism as a tool to retain, revive, and recast their unique ecclesial identity in a religious habitat that resists diversity. Based on unpublished archival materials, fieldwork, oral history, and social media research, Chow demonstrates how Chinese Adventists adhere to their denominational character both by recasting theologies and faith practices that they inherited from American missionaries in the early twentieth century and by engaging with local politics and culture. This book locates the Adventist movement in broader Chinese sociopolitical and religious contexts and explores the multiple agents at work in the movement, including intrachurch divisions among Adventist believers, growing encounters between local and overseas Adventists, and the denomination's ongoing interactions with local Chinese authorities and other Protestants. The Adventist schisms show that global Adventist theology and practices continue to inform their engagement with sociopolitical transformations and changes in China today. Schism will compel scholars to reassess the existing interpretations of the history of Protestant Christianity in China during the Maoist years and the more recent developments during the Reform era. It will interest scholars and students of Chinese history and religion, global Christianity, American religion, and Seventh day Adventism.

Annals & Memoirs of the Court of Peking Sir Edmund Backhouse, John Otway Percy Bland, 1914. The enduring interest displayed by many readers in the character of China's great Empress Dowager Tz Hsi and the generous appreciation accorded to our work on her life and reign have prompted the belief that the present work covering a wider stretch of space and time should prove interesting and of some value to those who desire to study the causes, immediate and remote, of recent and current events in the Far East. Until we understand something of the mainsprings of thought and action which determine the governance and daily life of a people, something of their atavistic memories and instincts, of their social, religious, and economic systems, it is not possible to sympathise with them in their perils and crises of change, or to render them the assistance which appreciation of their motives and intelligent anticipation of their needs might supply.

Mercy in Disaster Angela G. Schear, 2026-04-01. Mercy in Disaster is about the forgotten nurse in America's signature iconic photograph of Civil War wounded abolitionist Abby Hopper Gibbons. Hung in museums large and small, pictured in books and found across the internet rarely is what the New York Times called one of the most remarkable women of this century. Identified more practitioner than pundit, an organizer and social reformer for nearly six decades before the war, Gibbons spent the majority of America's largest crisis at the front or in various hospitals. Mercy in Disaster is the compilation of Gibbons's wartime letters and journals, which are a vivid window on the emerging role of women, medical care, the struggle for freedom by African Americans, and Gibbons's fascinating place in it all. An educated Quaker, Gibbons chronicles her efforts to overcome, avoid, or accommodate the obstacles confronting the women of her time. She responded to the suffering of war, witnessed medical care in evolution, and everywhere abetted the end of chattel slavery through aid and advocacy. The Japan Chronicle, 1915
