

CO-OPERATIVE BUSINESS RESOURCE PACKAGE

ABOUT CO-OPERATIVES:

The Ontario Co-operative Association is a not-for-profit co-operative organization, representing the 150+ co-operative businesses operating in Ontario, providing education, training, advocacy and business development support.

We recognize that although the co-operative business model is one of the four recognized business types in Canada and is reflected in the current Ontario curriculum, most teachers never learned about co-operative businesses and therefore do not have the tools to pass on that learning to their students. Our job is to make it easy for educators to teach co-operative content in the classroom.

Co-operatives are businesses that are owned by the people that use them. Co-operatives come in all shapes and sizes, they can be as small as 3 owners, or as large as 3-million owners, and they operate in every country and in every business sector, around the world.

Co-operatives typically form when a group of people or businesses are looking to fill a need for services and they decide to create their own business to provide themselves with the products or services they need. Sometimes those needs are for basic services like telecommunications, healthcare, housing, food or financial services. Sometimes those needs are for secure employment, buying, branding or marketing power, resource sharing, increasing scalability or access to markets, or creating economic and social support systems.

Co-operatives like Green Spray, Welch's, Suskint, Day Lee Foods and Vineland Grower's Co-operative allow family farms to access larger markets and negotiate better prices for their products, leading to improved economic outcomes and sustainability for their farming operations.

Housing co-operatives provide affordable and secure housing to over 250,000 Canadians, offering rental costs below market value.* Housing co-ops are owned and governed by their residents, which means no big rent hikes or "rent increases" to deal with from profit-driven landlords.

There are thousands of co-ops operating in Canada, many operating as small and medium-sized businesses; all examples of people working together for mutual benefit and to reach their shared goals. Everything from worker-owned courier services or cafes, co-operative music studios and art galleries, to video game design and architecture firms.

This package will help you introduce your students to a business sector that is striving to humanize the economy, providing career opportunities and entrepreneurship options based on a framework of shared decision-making, equity and equality, community-mindedness and collaboration.
