Architecture as a Frail, Literary Object Mark Campbell,2026-04-06 This book considers the motives ambitions and malaprops of writing architectural history during the early 1900s a moment that coincided with the emergence of modernity In reference to a series of eccentric Anglo American cultural figures it considers the relationships between architecture human perception disease and frailty to provide original ideas regarding the writing of architectural history and the literary construction of architecture Architecture is not typically associated with frailty Indeed one of the founding principles of architecture is that it should aspire to be stable resilient and indefatigable In addition architecture is also not typically thought of in terms of its literariness Tracing this contradictoriness this book considers architecture as a frail literary object by examining the eccentric architectural criticism of Geoffrey Scott author of The Architecture of Humanism 1914 together with the opportunistic connoisseurship of Bernard Berenson the leading authority on the attribution of Italian Renaissance painting Through a reading of their works it interprets architecture as both frail when viewed through the diffracted lens of nervous illness and a form of writing in which architecture assumes concrete form through literary description This book will be of interest to academics students and researchers in architecture and architectural history Country Gardens, 2006
