Creating Technical Manuals Donald H. Cunningham, Gerald Cohen, 1984      The Art of Technical Documentation Katherine Haramundanis, 2014-05-16 The Art of Technical Documentation presents concepts techniques and practices in order to produce effective technical documentation The book provides the definition of technical documentation qualities of a good technical documentation career paths and documentation management styles precepts of technical documentation practices for gathering information understanding what you have gathered and methods for testing documentation and considerations of information representation to provide insights on how different representations affect reader perception of your documents Technical writers and scientists will find the book a good reference material      Effective Documentation Stephen Doheny-Farina, 1988 Best Collection of Essays NCTE Awards for Excellence in Technical and Scientific Communication Effective Documentation is a major sourcebook that offers technical writers editors teachers and students of technical communication a wide variety of practical guidelines based on often hard to find research in the usability of printed and electronic media The book s eighteen chapters provide a wealth of material on such topics of current interest as the writing of design manuals research in cognitive psychology as applied to the design of user manuals and the organizing of manuals for hierarchical software systems Included are chapters by such well known scholars in the field as Philip Rubens Robert Krull Judith Ramey and John Carroll Effective Documentation reviews the advice offered by other how to produce usable documentation books describing the different types of usability research and explaining the inherent biases of each type It goes beyond the actual design of textual and or electronic media to look at these designs in context giving advice on effective management good management is a requisite of good writing on the relationship between document design and product design and on how to find out who one s readers really are Advances in the presentation of textual information are explained with suggestions on how to improve the usability of individual sentences and the design of entire books The concluding chapters discuss advances in the design and use of online information and offer valuable insights into the use of graphic information and the development and design of information communicated via electronic media Stephen Doheny Farina is Assistant Professor of Technical Communication at Clarkson University Effective Documentation is included in the Information Systems series edited by Michael Lesk      Creating Intelligent Content with Lightweight DITA Carlos Evia, 2018-12-07 Creating Intelligent Content with Lightweight DITA documents the evolution of the Darwin Information Typing Architecture DITA a widely used open standard for structuring technical content DITA has grown in popularity and features since its origins as an internal grammar for structuring technical documentation at IBM This book introduces Lightweight DITA LwDITA which should be read as Lightweight DITA as a proposed version of the DITA standard that reduces its dependence on complex Extensible Markup Language XML structures and simplifies its authoring experience This volume aims to reconcile discrepancies and similarities in methods for authoring content in industry and academia and does so by reporting on DITA's evolution through the lens of computational thinking which has been connected in scholarship and media to initiatives for learning to code and programming. Evia's core argument is that if technical communicators are trained with principles of rhetorical problem solving and computational thinking they can create structured content in lightweight workflows with XML, HTML5 and Markdown designed to reduce the learning curve associated with DITA and similar authoring methodologies. At the same time this book has the goal of making concepts of structured authoring and intelligent content easier to learn and teach in humanities based writing and communication programs. This book is intended for practitioners and students interested in structured authoring or the DITA standard.

Law-Making and Legitimacy in International Humanitarian Law Püschmann, Jonas, 2021-10-19 International Humanitarian Law (IHL) is in a state of some turbulence as a result of among other things non international armed conflicts, terrorist threats and the rise of new technologies. This incisive book observes that while states appear to be reluctant to act as agents of change, informal methods of law making are flourishing. Illustrating that not only courts but various non state actors push for legal developments, this timely work offers an insight into the causes of this somewhat ambivalent state of IHL by focusing attention on both the legitimacy of law making processes and the actors involved.

Weinberg on Writing Gerald M. Weinberg, 2006 The author reveals his secrets for gathering, organizing and discarding writing ideas. Drawing an analogy to the stone by stone method of building fieldstone walls, Weinberg shows writers how to construct fiction and nonfiction manuscripts from key insights, stories and quotes. The elements or stones are collected nonsequentially over time and eventually find logical places in larger pieces. The method renders writer's block irrelevant and has proved effective for scores of Weinberg's writing class students who have collectively published more than 100 books. If you've ever wanted to write a book or article or need a fresh approach to your writing career, try what works for Weinberg and gather your best ideas into beautiful stone walls.
